EDITORIAL BRIEFS

Gov. Foraker is said to be ill.

Daniel Daugherty's hair is as silvery as his tongue.

The Pittsburg Exposition yielded $42,500 above expenses.

The three Americas Congress delegates are now in the West.

Congressman S. S. Cox's estate will net only about five thousand dollars.

President Harrison is engaged in the preparation of his first message to Congress.

The King of Bavaria receives an income of $1,000,000 a year from the profits of the Hofbraubaus Brewery.

Ring rule in Centre county Democracy is not yet dead. Help to slay it by voting for the Republican candidates this fall.

General Green B Raum, of Illinois, is the new commissioner of pensions and Secretary Gordon says he is just the man for the place.

South Dakota is first to elect her United States Senators, Moddy and Pettigrew will creditably represent the new state to the United State Senate.

Governor Hill, of New York, is now in the South and in an address at Atlanta, Georgia, the other day, he gave the people more "taffy" than they can well digest all at once.

The International Maratime Conference is now in session in Washington. It is composed of representatives from all parts of the globe and its object is to render the seas safer by a systemmatic arrangement of routes of travel.

Nearly four hundred cases of Typhoid fever are reported at Johnstown, where people are shivering in temporary shanties. And yet over two millions of dollars were contributed for their comfort over three months ago.

Philadelphia politicians are now happy, some of them at least, as the President has commenced on the city appointments so long nelayed. Col. O. C. Bosbyshell has been named as Superintendent of the Mint and the appointment is generally commended.

Chauncey M. Depew predicts that Grover Cleveland will be nominated by the Democrats for President in 1892, but he does not say that he will be elected. Grover expects the nomination, it is well known, but he will not receive it if Governor Hill can prevent it.

Hardly secondary to the Pan-American Congress which meets in Washington after the tour of the delegates is over, is the International Marine Conference which has just met and organized in the same city. Every maratime nation of consequence in the world is represented by some of its ablest men and there is reason to believe excellent results will follow.

The American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions has passed a resolution calling on Congress to co-operate with Great Britain and Germany in the work of abolishing slavery in Eastern Africa. The slave trade which is now carried on in the region is one of the high crimes of the nineteenth century, and is at last beginning to arouse the indignation of the civilized world.

SKETCH OF GENERAL HARTRANFT

All our readers have doubtless read with sincere regret of the death of Major General John F. Hartranft, in Philadelphia, on Thursday at noon. He was born in New Hanover, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, December 16, 1830. He was educated at Marshall and Union Colleges and was graduated at the latter in 1853; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1859. At the beginning of the civil war he raised the Fourth Pennsylvania regiment, and commanded it during the three months of its enlistment, which expired on the day before the first battle of Bull Run. As his regiment had been ordered to Harrisburg to be mustered out, he asked and obtained leave to serve as a volunteer on General William B. Franklin's staff in that battle. He then organized the Fifty-first Pennsylvania regiment; was commissioned its colonel July 27, 1861, and with it accompanied General Burnside in his expedition to North Carolina in March, 1862.

He took part in all the engagements of the Ninth Corps; led the charge that carried the stone bridge at Antietam, and commanded his regiment at Fredericksburg. He was then ordered to Kentucky and was engaged in the battle of Campbell's Station and the successful defense of Knexville.

He was with the Ninth Corps in June, 1863, as covering army to the troops beseiging Vicksburg, and after the fall of that place marched with General William T. Sherman in his advance to Jackson, Mississippi. He commanded a brigade in the battles of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania; was commissioned Brigadier General of volunteers on May 12th, 1864, and took part in all the movements before Petersburg. He was assigned to the command of a division in August, 1864, and brevetted Major General for his services in recapturing Fort Steadman on March 25th, 1865.

He was elected Auditor General of Pennsylvania in October, 1865, and on August 28th, 1866, the President offered him a colonency in the regular army which he declined. General Hartranft, was re-elected Auditor General 1868, and in 1872-8 was Governor of Pennsylvania. The militia of Pennsylvania was entirely reorganized on a military basis during his two terms as Governor.

The plan of municipal reform that was suggested by him in1876 was adopted in 1885, the Mayor of Philadelphia being elected under its provisions in 1887. Immediately after the close of its second term as Governor he removed to Philadelphia. He was appointed postmaster of that city in June, 1878, and Collector of the Port in August, 1880. He was at the time of his death Major General commanding the National Guard of Pennsylvania, which post he held by appointment since 1879.

An exchange remarks that the Democratic newspapers which are so confident that Montana will give its electoral vote to a Democratic candidate for President in 1892 should remember Colorado. When that State was a Territory it had, like Montana, been in the habit of giving small Democratic majorities, and at the first Presidential election, held there in 1876, the Democrats were sure that it would vote for Tilden. On the contrary, however, it rolled up an emphatic majority for Hayes, and has ever since that time been a Republican State.

Secretary Blaine delivered the address of welcome to the International Maratime Conference at Washington. It was an excellent address and here is a very pretty passage from it, the meaning of which, however, is not exactly clear to us. He said: "The spoken languages of the world will continue to be many, but necessity commands that the unspeken language of the sea shall be one. That language must be as universal as the needs of man for commerce and intercourse with his fellow-man."

This is what people call an 'off year.' That is an unfortunate expression. There should be no such thing as an 'off year.' A few days hence we elect a State Treasurer, an official who collects and disburses $10,000,000 and one who has supervision over $20,000,000 of the State's money. Is not this an important office, and is it proper to call this an 'off year?'

The South Americans are collecting valuable information. For example, Senor Rossi's discovery that calico is made and sold at Lawrence for six cents a yard which sells from twenty-seven to thirty cents in San Salvador, is an argument for trade with this country which will not fail to tell.

DEMAGOGUES AND SUBSIDIES

No wonder the delgates from South American countries express surprise, as one of them did to a Tribune correspondent, at the unpatriotic spirit shown by some of the Democratic papers in this country regarding the approaching International Congress. It seems to these delegates a strange and discreditable thing that newspapers, professing to seek the National welfare, should strive in advance to disparage and defeat an endeavor to establish closer relations of trade and amity with other countries whose commerce has been to Great Britain and to the nations of Europe a source of large profit.

But to people of this country the reasons are evident. There is, first Blaineophobia. Those who have that disease are incapable of feeling calmly, thinking clearly, or talking rationally about anything which can possibly redound to the credit of the Secretary of State. They have staked their entire influence in public affairs upon the endeavor to make him appear at once the most foolish and the most wicked man on earth, and it would put them in a humiliating attitude to be obliged to give him credit for one patriotic purpose or one sensible idea. When men have a disease so disqualifying as this they scarcely command the slightest attention among the people of this country who know of their malady. But a foreigner naturally wonders that a person so afflicted is placed in a newspaper office and not in a sanitarium, with careful treatment and gentle restraint.

Another difficulty is that a great many demagogues have made such a fuss about subsidies be raised under that act, the United States cannot receive surrendered fugitives from Canada under its provisions without co-operating with a dependent State in discrediting the supreme treaty-making powers of the Imperial Government. The Weldon Act cannot be operative without the sanction of the British Government. It it has been vetoed Canada will adopt a prudent course in submitting patiently and with good grace to the supreme jurisdiction of the Mother State.—New York Tribune.

One of the greatest crimes of Democracy was the condemnation of the Dolphin, the vessel built by John Roach at his ship-yard. The unjust criticism of this triumph of modern ship building made the veteran ship builder go in bankruptcy and caused his death. Now the ship is pronounced the best in the service and it is suggested that another of the same kind be built. The vessel has made a trip around the world and came home without a flaw. There is no other vessel in the service that could have done so well. Why was this condemnation of a grand vessel? Only, to cast discredit on the Republican administration that had contracted for it. The wrong can never be remedied. John Roach cannot be brought back to life and happiness. Perhaps he is happier where he now is. But some restitution may be made by Congress to his family and relatives. Perhaps National honor will compell such restitution.

The Harrisburg Telegraph says that the Republicans will not lack for candidates for the Gubernatorial office next year. The latest name to be suggested for that honorable position is that of Hon. Thomas McCamant, the present able and worthy Auditor General. He is the nominee of the Lewisburg News. His great popularity, his extensive acquaintance with the leading men of the state, his efficiency in every position of honor and trust to which he has been promoted, his thorough familiarity with the minutest details of the State government, together with his geniality and amiability, would make him a popular candidate and a capable and successful executive.

"We have hailed the tariff reform flag to the mast and, sink or swim, survive or perish, we shall stand by it to the end," declared Governor Hill, of New York, in a recent address to New Jersey Democrats. Governor Hill's champion, the New York Sun, will not quote the sentiment with quite the same satisfaction which Mr. Dana has found in that other historic utterance of Governor Hill's, "I am a Democrat."—Kansas City Journal.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 19, 1889.

A scurrying to and fro of carriages bent on shopping and calling; on social and domestic errands, a smarting up of horses; a flutter of society; a tremendous and important flurry in the Departments and crowds of visitors at the Executive Mansion, and a child might know that the important season of Congressional session is at hand: The President is already busy on his message and to prevent an excessive number of interruptions has announced shorter hours for general business and the reception of the public. By this means he hopes to give some attention to his more important duties, though he does not hope to entirely escape persecution.

It was supposed, owing to Mrs. Harrison's somewhat delicate health, that the society duties of the administration would devolve largely upon the wife of the Vice President and society looked forward with a great deal of pleasure to the social events the Morton millions could furnish. Mrs. Morton is one of the most admired women who ever moved in Washington society. Her magnificent entertainments during former years are fond traditions. But Mrs. Harrison has announced that she will in no measure retire from society, but will remain the first lady of the land, so far as the social duties of the President's wife are concerned. The announcement is received with delight by her friends.

The proclamation announcing the compliance of the new States of Washington, Montana and North and South Dakota with the terms of the enabling act and their admission to the Federal union is ready for promulgation. The act merely required that the constitutions should be Republican in form and the President be satisfied that the terms of the act had been complied with. Copies of the proposed constitution of each State must be submitted to the President as soon as adopted by their constitutional conventions. There has been considerable telegraphing between the State leaders and the government hoping to expedite matters, as the legislatures called to choose United States Senators cannot have a legal existence until the States have been formally proclaimed.

The earliest callers at the White House yesterday were Senators Cameron and Quay, of Pennsylvania, who had a lengthy talk with the President regarding the Philadelphia offices. Mr. Harrison expressed his satisfaction with the admirable manner in which the chairman of the National Committee had conducted the campaign in the embryo states. The conversation then turned to matters in hand, first, with respect to the superintendency of the mint. Superintendent Fox has long wished to retire and his resignation was in Mr. Quay's hands. Col. O. C. Bosbyshell was appointed his successor by recommendation of Messrs. Quay and Cameron. The Pittsburg postmastership the President promised to dispose of in a few days.

After leaving the White House the Senators saw Mr. Blaine as to the Pennsylvania applicants for Consular positions. The list is simply tremendous, though the quota of Pennsylvania is only fourteen. There must be 1500 applicants and Senators Cameron and Quay had a long job picking out their men.

In the next fortnight the ordinance department will make some interesting experiments with a new smokeless gunpowder. It has made a very favorable impression upon European war experts, but there are objections to it. One sample when exploded loosened a stench that would drive a regiment to shelter, and several of the samples show uncertainty of action. They hang fire, and sometimes altogether fail to explode.

A handsome girl was fined five dollars in Chicago for kissing an elderly gentleman on a street cornes. He must have been very elderly and a very ungallant gentleman who would have a girl arrested for kissing him. It would be interesting to know exactly what could have prompted the old chump to take such a step. Possibly it was the first time he had undergone the experience of being kissed, and he did not know what a luxury it was: Possibly the girl did not make an entire success of the performance, as the subject was evidently not in a receptive or reciprocal situation at the time. At all events the girl deserved her punishment for not displaying better taste. The account states that a number of young men had submitted willingly to the salutation: Why, then, did she not limit her operations to the class that were willing to "kiss and never tell." Some of the latter class should, by all means, be manly enough to pay her fine, but they should first exact a promise from her that, in the future, she will not "cast pearls before swine."

THE REPUBLICAN CANVASS.

Some of the Democrat managers have lately been expressing in private a hope that they may be able to elect their candidate for State Treasurer by reason of Republican apathy, and also by reason of the vote which they think will be given to the Prohibition ticket. We agree with the Philadelphia Bulletin, however, that if they do not succeed in electing Mr. Bigler, however, they are at least hopeful that they may so reduce the Republican majority that they will enter with something like prestige the great campaign next year for Governor, Legislature, Congressman and a United States Senator.

So far as their hopes may rest on the size of the Prohibition vote, there will be no cause for apprehension. There is no likelihood that the unknown Mr. Johnston, of Pittsburg, will figure to any formidable extent in the voting. Of course most of the votes which he will poll will be votes that ordinarily would belong to the Republican party; but the indications are that they will not exceed the normal or average Prohibition vote of the past ten years. He will do well if he should receive 30,000 or 35,000 votes, and that will not be sufficient to imperil the Republican ticket.

But there is some cause for danger, and it ought to be recognized at once, in the extreme indifference of many Republicans to the campaign. This is not, as some politicians have been disposed to assume, because there is any general dissatisfaction with the policy of President Harrison, as there was in 1877 with the policy of President Hayes. It is simply because thousands of Republican voters feel so certain that the election of Mr. Boyer for State Treasurer is assured that they do not think there is any occasion on their part for the usual activity.

It would be well if they were to act on the assumption that the campaign is doubtful and do all that they can to bring out a full vote. There is no good reason why a light vote should be polled two weeks from next Tuesday, when with a little energy in that interval it ought to be easy to bring out at least 100,000 more votes than are now likely, from the present condition of things, to turn up at the polls. In many parts of the interior of the State there is next to absolutely no campaign at all going on, and even in Philadelphia there has been little done beyond the efforts of the candidates and their immediate friends.

The majority for our gallant candidate, Mr. Boyer, should not be less than 40,000. Work, work, work should be our motto.

Mr. Blaine is reported as saying that it would be the "wisest stroke of policy for the Republicans in both houses to unite as soon as congress convenes, upon a bill designed to meet the popular demand for tariff revision without disturbing the welfare of any established American industry." This is precisely what ought to be done. It will not be an easy task to frame a tariff bill that will satisfy all interests, but the country will look to the fifty-first Congress for good and prompt work in this connection.

Congressman Nutting, of the Oswego, N. Y., district, having been in ill health for some time and dispairing of recovery in time to attend the meeting of Congress in December, has resigned his seat, and Gov. Hill has ordered a special election for his successor at the time of the regular State election in Novemoer, Mr. Nutting's action is highly patriotic and the election of a successor will prevent any embarrassment to the Republicans, as the district is Republican beyond a doubt.

Pittsburgh Times: That Pennsylvania Democratic leaders should be campaigning thus early for Cleveland for President we cannot understand. They do not seem to comprehend the difference between a candidate against whom the State will every time give a majority of 80,000, and lose in country at large, and one with whom there is a possible chance. No candidate that Pennsylvania goes against by 80,000 can ever win the country at large.

Senator Hiscock, of New York, has said that his State will have less influence in deciding the Presidentialelection in 1892 than it has had in past years. This will be a cause for rejoicing rather than otherwise. The increase of the population in the western states, and the consequent increase in the number of Republican electors, will lessen the influence exerted by New York, and as the undue preponderance of the state, or rather of New York city, at Presidential elections, has worked a great deal of mischief its reduction will be a distinct gain to the rest of the country.

And now politics is raising its head to plague the New Yorkers. The insinuation is made that a Republican Congress is quite sure to refuse to pay money into a city like New York, through a lot of unscrupulous Democrats, in the very year of a political campaign, 1892. That the distribution of great sums of money that year would be very advantageous to a political committee, and that Congress sees this and will act accordingly. This knocks another hope for the near New Yorker.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Mr. Henry Villard is once more on the topmost wave of prosperity. Those who profess to know Villard's ambition say that he will not rest in his schemes of railroad extension and speculation until he is able to stand on the same plane financially with Jay Gould.

Poetry.

Telling a Fortune.

Would you have your fortune told?
Cross my palm with shining gold,
And I'll tell it true.
In the future dim I see
Fortune,—love,—prosperity,—
All awaiting you.

Soon a maid with raven hair,
Star-lit eyes, and beauty rare,
You will meet by chance.
Boldly you will woo and win,
Happy fates will aid you in
This, your life romance.

She will bring you wealth in store
Happiness, and love, and more,
Blest will be your life·
Such good fortune comes to few,
All mankind will envy you
Such a perfect wife.

Would you know the lady's name?
Yes, of course: and who could blame
You for your request?
And the half has not been told,—
Cross my palm again with gold,
And I'll tell the rest.

Despair.

There wasn't a doubt he did the deed'
And yet in the light of day,
Tho' the officers had him a dozen of times,
He easily got away.

The papers came with descriptions full
Of his height, his hair, his eyes,
And some gave his picture, the which they said
Was a fine stroke of enterprise.

He saw it and sighed: "If I look like that,
I oughtn't to live a day.
So he woke a detective at work on a clue
And gave himself up right away.

A Poet's Woes.

He wrote some verse;
'Twas to rehearse,
In language that was glowing'
Her dainty grace,
Her lovely face,
Her smile so joy bestowing.

She took her pen
And wrote again,
"I think this much is due you
Though bad your rhyme;
Misspent your time,
I'll be a sister to you·"

Our Story Telier.

FORTUNE'S FREAKS.

STRANGE MANNER IN WHICH A LOST COMPETENCE WAS REGAINED.

I was sitting in my study, my head propped upon my hand, wondering if the time had come when I must actually be a bread-and-butter writer. So far I had never written without being sure I had something to say, but now we had had potatoes for dinner without any embellishments for three days, things were becoming grave, yet the public were always demanding humorous articles. As I sat there, two or three plots came to my mind, those I had laid aside for future use, but I couldn't fix them up. I smiled derisively; how often had I said to younger writers: "Never give way to moods or wait for inspiration; if you make authorship your lifework, attend to it as to any other business· force yourself to the routine of working at it every day like any other bread-and-butter affair." Of course I had thrown in gratis, advice about talent, artistic feeling and training—my common sense for others was a good enough affair, but it did not work just now for me.

I looked over at my vacant safe in the corner; not three years ago it had contained silver, jewelry and bills, not to mention some bonds, the interest of which might see us comfortably through life. Now, it stood a satire on our poverty with its iron-bound sides and empty vault.

There was a knock at my study door. "Just a minute, George," said my wife on the other side. She poked her bright curly head in. 'Oh, I just want to tell you, I know I ought not to attempt; but Sally has been telling me about her sister Eliza, and it would be such a good plot, dear."

"Come in and tell it Sue, I am just at my wit's end."

'Oh! I can't. You must hear Sally.' My sweet little helpmeet seated herself on the edge of a chair, and said:

'You know how I love to hear Sally talk in her soft, negro voice, and as she was clearing the table I expressed my surprise at her having paid $25 for a seal plush wrap.'

''Well, Miss Sue," said she, fixing her large eyes upon me and grasping the silver spoons and forks in one hand, 'it's the first thing new I've bought for myself in over three years, 'ceptin' workin' dresses like this. Don't you think I deserved it?'

'She is so pretty, so plump, with such soft, wavy hair; her eyes are beautiful, George, and her teeth so white.'

'How is that, Sally?'

'I had to use it for my family, Miss Sue; you see they needed it. Liza was sick a long time, then my father died, an' what with one thing an' other, the $300 I'd put in the bank all went; then I had to go in debt to Miss Jarvis, an' until I come up here I was hard at work all the time to pay it off. I jes' got it paid 'fore I left Kentucky.'

'Sit down and tell me about Eliza,' I said; for I thought at once, George, that the material might be good for you; besides, she always spoke of Eliza in such a tender way I wanted to hear about her.

'You would have liked Liza, Miss Sue. Poor Liza!' She caught her breath, and the tears filled her dark eyes. 'Liza was younger than me, she was jes' full of life an' singin' all the time. We us'd to love to get her at our ironin' table; she us'd to work 'long side o' me. Why, Miss Sue, her face was jes' like a mornin'-glory. Every one us'd to be in good spirits when Liza u'd come singin' through the yard an' poke her laughin' face in the winder at us, 'fore she came round to the door—but my! how sick she'd been. You wouldn't never thought it to seen her then.'

'Was she prettier than you, Sally?' I didn't mind asking a bit, for every one thought Sally the prettiest mulatto in town.

'She looked at the spoons and forks, and answered, bashfully: 'I was ugly side o' Liza.'

'How old was Liza?'

'Liza was only eighteen then; 'twas after she was married.'

'You don't mean she was married then?'

'Yes, ma'am she was. We'd all known Joe since he was a baby; we'd been raised together. A rich woman had adopted him—rich for colored folks, I mean. She had a greenhouse, and a right smart sum of money in the bank· When Joe come foolin' 'round Liza I didn't want her to have nothin' to do with him, 'cause we all knowed he was fast, he lived too high. He was handsome, an' Liza was young; an' you know how 'tis, Miss Sue, you might as well talk to the wind as to a girl that thinks she's in love. Miss Sarvis, that's Joe's aunt who'd adopted him, she gave them a big wedding. All the first colored folks in Redville came, an' arterwards Liza and Joe went off for a trip an' came back in a few weeks to live in Redville, While they was on their wedding trip I went to work in Louisville. My sister Annie was married an' lived there. One day when I went in to see her she looked that scared, and had a letter tucked in her dress. I began to talk 'bout Liza, but she wouldn't talk about her nohow; an' so I says: 'Where's that letter from you jes' now hid in your dress?' After awhile she gave it to me, an' O Miss Sue it would 'a' broke your heart to read that letter. Seems like Liza never could 'a' wrote it.

'She'd been married over a year then. She wouldn't write to me 'cause I'd been so down on her marryin' Joe. Miss Sue, Liza wrote that letter-a-lyin' on the floor. Joe had sold the bed from under her. There wasn't a thing in the house to eat. Every stitch of the clothin' but the rags Liza wore, he had sold. She buried her little three-weeks-old baby the day before. She was just dyin.'

'Sally gulped down a sob, and the tears welled over her lids and down her cheeks.

'If you could 'a' seen her when I got there! I wouldn't have known her; an' she jes' turned her pitiful eyes to me an' says: 'Sally, you ain't mad at me, is you?' I jes' took her in my arms and cried over her. She was so thin you could see the bones comin' through. There she lay in her rags, with the cold wind stirrin' along the floor, and not a morsel of food had passed her lips for over two days.

'Joe came in by and by half drunk, but he was sober enough to know what I said to him. I was that angry I felt like a giant, an' wasn't afraid of him and didn't care what I said. But Liza, she stroked his hand and said, 'Poor fellow!' and that made me so mad I nearly left her. I can't understand how it was. I think Liza must have been clear crazy, but she said she loved him and wouldn't hear me scold him. She wouldn't leave him nohow, so I fixed her up and went back to Louisville, My, how my heart ached for Liza! poor, foolish child. By and by came a pitiful letter, but I wouldn't do nothin' till she'd promise never to see Joe again. I went an' brought her home to Mrs. Southworth, where I was workin.' I made her write it down that she'd never see Joe again, 'fore I'd take her back with me. He had done something dreadful, I reckon, else she wouldn't 'a' promised.

'He didn't even come to bid her good-by. I found her starvin, and even thinner than before, an' so I brought her home. She cheered up wonderful. She said she meant never to make me feel bad that I'd brought her home. Miss Southworth hired her, when she was well enough to work a little, an' so we both was in the same home. Miss Southworth made a fuss over Liza; she wanted her with her all the time, but Liza liked to be longside o' me in the ironin' room. She was so smilin' and happy you'd never have thought she'd know what sorrow was, but when she thought I was not looking I'd see such a sad, wistful look in her eyes. She had an awful cough, an' once the doctor told me Liza would never be well.

'We found her lyin' on the floor one day, with her eyes closed. There was a bit of paper near her. See'd tried to crawl to the stove but couldn't, so she'd tore the letter up in little bits. We couldnt make out a word, but we knowed Joe wrote it.

'After that she never seemed to get well. We took her to my sister Annie, and she would lie in a stupor-like for days, but when she opened her eyes she was always askin' for me. Seems like she wouldn't let me out of her sight. She'd want me to be beside her an' she'd put her arms around my neck and draw my face close to her's and say: 'You ain't mad at me, Sally, no more, is you? I've kept my promise.'

'The great tears brimmed over Sally's eyes and she went on: 'I couldn't leave her no longer, so I told Miss Southworth, an' then I went to stay at Anne's, an' took care of Liza. Oh, but she was beautiful, Miss Sue, her cheeks was pink an' her eyes so bright. Some days she used to be well enough to be dressed, an' she'd set by the window and look out as though she was holdin' her breath to listen, but she kept her promise an' never mentioned Joe's name. She seemed so sad it almost broke my heart, and one day I says: 'Liza, do you want to see Joe?,

'Such a look as came into her eyes! an' she smiled like her old self, an' then the wistful look came back an' she answered, so low I could scarcely hear her: 'You told me I must never speak his name.'

'The sobs jes' shook me an' I kissed her and said: 'You shell see him, Liza, I will send for him.' But she caught my hand an' says: 'Not now, Sally, not now. Not till I am dying. I thought may be he had been here.'

'An oh, how I wished he had, when I saw the look in her eyes. I'd give my life to have had him care enough to ask how she was; but I had to shake my head.

'That night we sent telegrams over the country for him. Liza knew next mornin' she was dying. Then she told me 'bout the letters she'd got from Joe, all 'bout a robbery, and where he'd stowed the things, but she said she dared not tell me because she'd promised never to mention his name. She wanted to see him. She said he was afraid to use the things for fear of bein' caught, an' all this time Liza had been mornin' over it and wantin' to write him to give them to her; she'd take them back and bear the punishment.

'We told her we'd sent for him to come; but she died that mornin' with the listenin' look on her face, and that day we read in the papers that Joe had been arrested for the robbery, but that he got away from the officers; but they fired at him and shot him dead.'

'There,' said my wife, 'I've told you the story, and did not mean to. You must hear Sally tell it.'

I was filled with excitement; there was something more than that story in what my wife had been relating. She had been so interesten in hearing of Liza, that she had not noticed some peculiar facts connecting it very closely with our own life.

'Would you mind asking Sally to come in here to me?' I asked.

'Be careful in questioning her, dear, or you may not get what you wish. I am so glad it will do, George, but be sure and show sympathy for her, else you can not get her to tell it in a natural way.'

'Dear me, Sue!' I burst forth. 'I can not contain myself, don't you see any connection between that story and our loss?' I pointed to my empty safe. 'Can't you remember when we lived in Orange and was not so poor? Can't you remember a colored coachman by the name of Joe Ramsay, whose mother kept a greenhouse—'

'Mercy!' cried Sue, jumping up. 'I never thought of it! You don't think that was Liza's husband?'

'I certainly do.'

'Well, but Sally knows nothing about it?'

'But we may get some clew to these bonds and—'

'I will call her,' and away flew my wife.

The pretty mulatto with her sleeves rolled up to her elbows, came into the room. My wife with subdued excitement stood beside her.

'Mrs. Kercheval has been telling me of your sister Eliza and of her husband Joe Ramsay.' I pronounced the name boldly, But Sally seemed not to notice it and answed:

'Yes, sir.'

My wife nodded excitedly.

'Did anyone ever know where the bonds were that he stole?' I asked quietly. Sally took a step forward, her eyes wide with astonishment. 'You know about them, then? Sir! Oh! do you know who lost them?'

'Joe Ramsay was my coachman. We lived in Orange at the time. He was arrested for robbery, but was shot while trying to escape. No one knew what he did with the bonds. I have the best authority for knowing they were never presented.'

Sally burst into tears. 'Oh, I am so glad, so glad! Ah to think they were yours and Miss Sue's all the time Joe buried those little papers under the floor of their room, Liza told me with her dyin' breath. She grieved so to think she didn't know where the rest of the things was. She didn't think the papers any 'count but I saved them thinking they might be; they're in my trunk this minute. Liza would a' been so glad to know you got 'em back!'

Thanks to the honesty of those sisters we were once more well to do. Over Eliza's grave we placed the monument Sally had longed for and to this day she is ignorant of how I was spared the necessity of writing simply for our bread and butter.

THE STUDY OF PALMISTRY.

A "Professor" of the Art Tells How to Analyze Character.

Indianapolis News.

Look at your hand. Do you read your character in it? Or study your girl's hand to be wise.

The science of chironomy, or the meaning of the human hand, always excites curiosity, but few people understand it Can a man's character be read on his hand as well as you can read it in his face, or by the bumps on his head? 'Tis so claimed, and the science by which is is done is a pretty one. It has many branches, all of them worth studying. 'If the palm of the hand is skinny and narrow,' said a 'professor' of the science, 'it denotes timidity, a feeble mind and want of moral and intellectual force. If the palm is too thick, big and strong it denotes a low intelligence and a tendency to brutality. A hollow, deep palm always signifies misery, ill luck and failure in life. Fingers which are smooth denote a tendency to act upon instinct, impulse or intuition rather than by reason, calculation or deduction. Knotty fingers denote a tendency to order and arrangement. People with short fingers are quicker, more impulsive, act more on the spur of the moment than people with long fingers. If the fingers are very short it signifies cruelty and want of tact.

'Long fingers denote a love of detail. Such persons are tidy as to their appointments, easily put out and very careful about trifles. Workers in small things always have large hands, and the constructors of colossal works have small hands. Small-handed people write large, whilst large-handed people always write small.

'Thick fingers denote luxury. Twisted and malformed fingers, with short nails, denote cruelty, tyranny and a worrying, teasing disposition. If a hand is stiff and hard, opening with difficulty to its fullest extent, it betrays stubbornness of character and avarice. If the fingers are supple, having a tendency to turn back, they denote, as a rule, cleverness and inquisitiveness, nearly always generosity, ending in extravagance. If the fingers fit close together it is a sign of avarice. If twisted so as to show chinks between them it is a sign of curiosity. If they are smooth and transparent they betray indiscretion and loquacity.'

To Our Neighbors.

The question is often asked by our neighbors, "Where I wonder, can I get a pure stimulant?" It is a fact that there is scarcely a roof under which you can not find a stimulant of some kind. Old people prolong life with it; sick people have it to sustain life; well people may and do use it to make life more enjoyable, but where will we advise our readers to buy it? We learn from the most reliable source that Max Klein is one of the most popular and respected citizens of this country. At his home his word is taken unhesitatingly. To him we can cheerfully recommend our readers for anything in the liquor line. He authorizes us to say that for $1.00 you can buy one quart of six year old rye, or six quarts for $5.00. His "Silver Age" at $1.50 per quart is without doubt the best whiskey know. Send for price list and complete catalogue. His address is, Max Klein, 82 Federal St., Allegheny, Pa.

HIS DAILY BREAD.

HOW A SHREWD MAN MAKES A GOOD LIVING BY EATING CRUSTS.

There was the usual crowd of ladies shopping on Fourteenth street yesterday. A slender man about 35 years old, with an uncertain blonde beard, and wearing blue overalls and a well-worn coat, walked rapidly down the street. Directly in front of two handsomely-dressed ladies, who were walking slowly, he stopped, stooped over and picked up a crust of bread. With an apparently shame-faced air he took a bite of the crust and placed the remainder in his pocket. Then he started away. At first the ladies were too shocked to speak. Then one of them called after him:

'Oh, poor man! Come back here. We want to talk to you.'

He paused as if undecided what to do. Then he shuffled back to them with downcast head.

'My poor man,' said one of the ladies, pityingly, 'are you so hungry as that? What was it you picked up? Let me see.'

The man turned his head away and said nothing. While the ladies were fumbling with their purses he drew forth the crust of bread.

'Yes, I am hungry, he admitted, 'and so are my wife and babies. I can't get work anywhere, and I cannot beg."

Instantly the purses flew open and the dollars were placed in his hand. He didn't seem to want to take the money, but the ladies prevailed upon him. Other ladies came up and were told the story. When the man went away he had over $5.

About twenty feet away stood a well-dressed man.

'Great Caesar's ghost,' he ejaculated to a companion. 'Did you see that? That fellow who got the money. It's the cleverest scheme that I've seen for a year. It's a new one to me. That fellow carries a crust of bread, and when he sees a benevolent looking lady he drops it surreptitiously and picks it up conspicuously. And he works it like an artist. I'm going to watch him for a while.'

The well-dressed man followed the clever swindler for an hour. In that time the man made over $10. Then he seemed satisfied with his days work, and made his way to a Bowery saloon.

A Queer Phenomenon.

Capt. Thompson, of the schooner Challenger, returned to San Francisco the other day from a long cruise in the South Sea and along the South American coast. He visited the battlefield of Tarapaca, where the Chillians and Peruvians met November 17, 1876, and the Peruvians after losing 4000 men, were forced to retreat, leaving their dead unburied. "In any other country," said the captain, "these unburied corpses would in a few weeks have been reduced to skeletons by wild animals, and the bodies remained undisturbed by them. The soil, too, is strongly impregnated with nitrate of soda, and this, in connection with the hot, dry atmosphere, has converted men and horses into perfect mummies. Seen on a bright moonlight night, as I first saw it, the battle appears as if fought but a day or two ago, the colors of the uniforms being still bright, and the steel of their weapons untarnished. Inspection by daylight, and a curious phenomenon is observed. The hair of the bodies of the men has grown since death to a length of from 2 to 4 feet, the tails of the cavalry horses are now so long that, if alive, they would trail far behind on the ground.'

Too Large a Contract for His Capacity.

Detroit Free Press.

'I'm perfectly willing to do any sort of work, ma'am:' he argued, as she held the door open. 'I don't ask you to give me a meal for nothing.'

'You'll earn it, will you?' she asked.

'Certainly I will. All I ask for is the opportunity.'

'Are you particular about the work?'

'Not in the least. Set me at any blessed thing.'

'Very well. I've got a hired girl who has been running the house for a week or so, and I haven't the moral courage to discharge her, Come in and work her out.'

'Let me see her, ma'am. I'll go to the back door and size her up.'

He was gone about two minutes, and when he came back he nearly carried the side gate off its hinges in his hurry to get through. He didn't even stop in the front yard, but as he kept on he turned his face to the crack in the door, and said:

'Thank you very kindly, ma'am, but I guess I ain't hungry and can make these old clothes do me till next spring.'

THE UNTUTORED DAKOTAN.

Proves to Be More Than a Match for the Dame from Beantown.

Washington Post.

'Of course,' said the lady from Boston, 'your rough western life, devoid of those refining influences which mold eastern character, marks its victims. One can detect the western man or woman at once by—well—by the absence of that nameless, subtle charm we call culture.'

'Yes,' returned her chance traveling companion, a bright Dakota girl; 'we are deprived of many advantages, yet we are satisfied——'

'There's just the trouble, my dear; you're too well satisfied. Where ignorance is bliss—pardon me, but would you mind changing seats with me? This sun is unbearable. Ah, thanks. To one of my sensitive nature the saddest of all this is your very inability to appreciate your needs. This wasting of life and the comprehension of its higher purposes——'

'Still, we are not altogether without educational advantages,' murmured the young lady. 'Dakota has several churches and school houses, and most of the people have abandoned dugouts for houses.'

'Poor child,' pityingly; 'excuse me, dear; but would you mind Loretta's lying on your coat? She so dotes on soft fur. Thanks. Into what a flower of womanhood a girl like you would blossom under the refining environment that made me what I am! Embellished by that nameless grace of culture, shorn of those mannerisms which betray the early association of western ideas, toned in carriage, dress, and accent, you would compare with some of our belles. Here, porter, I ordered hot water, not tea. Another dereliction of that sort and I will report you.'

'Perhaps, madame, you would enjoy a bit of chicken with your hot water,' said the Dakota girl cordially, as she opened a generous lunch basket.

'Ah! thank you dear. No; a bit of the breast, please. The dark meat is less delicate. Not any of the tongue. It hasn't quite the right color. Yes, thanks, the white grapes are nice. No, no; not any jelly. Why, we Boston people regard jelly eaters as relics of the dark ages. What would my mother say? Her daughter eating pie in a common coach with a strange young person! Well it doesn't taste bad. Doughnuts! Mercy, child! Doughnuts and chicken! There, I'll take it to please you! How do you people keep your health on such a menu daily?'

'Then we sometimes,' admitted the Dakota girl, with just the suggestion of a smile—'we sometimes have baked pork and beans Saturday nights—'

'Baked beans?' grasped the Boston woman, 'Why, when, where, how did you learn to eat baked beans Saturday nights? Where are you going?'

'To Boston madam. I'm returning to finish my musical education. I was born and brought up there. Like most Dakota people I'm from the East.'

'I presume now,' continued the Dakota girl, mildly, 'it wouldn't be the correct thing for me to say it was lack of good breeding that prompted you to score me on any supposed ignorance, take half my seat for your traps, order my window closed and take my place to get out of the sun? I suppose it was that subtle something you previously mentioned, that enabled you to use my coat for a dog cushion. It was culture that induced you to threaten the porter for a trival oversight, and to make that poor woman wretched because her baby cried. It was Boston finish and aesthetic delicacy that induced you to abuse my lunch eat the best of it. We of the West do not consider intelligence restricted by geographical lines, or courtesy and common sense a local question.'

And there was silence in that car for the space of an hour.

LIMIT OF AN OFFICER'S POWER.

Jefferson Chalfont, a police officer of Upland, was convicted in court at Media, Friday, for assault and battery in shooting William S Murphy, whom he was trying to arrest. The evidence was that Murphy had got into a scrimmage with his father, and the latter had asked the officer to arrest him. The officer did not see the scrimmage and had no warrant for his man, but when young Murphy attempted to run he shot him, the ball passing through his leg.

Officers of the law, said Judge Clayton in charging the jury, are given large authority, but they are also held to strict accountability of the use of the same. An officer who has arrested a person for murder, arson, or burglary, or any crime known in law as a felony, may kill his prisoner before allowing him to escape, after he has exhausted all other means of retaining him. In the case of a misdemeanor where he has made an arrest on the authority of a warrant, or has seen the breach of peace or offense committed himself, he may use sufficient force to retain his prisoner, but he has no right to use a deadly weapon unless in case of self-defense.

Officer Chalfont was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and the costs of the suit amounting in all to about $100.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL.

For a good variety of excellent reading, see THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL AND SCIENCE OF HEALTH for October. The titles are unusually attractive in themselves. Of the Personal sketches, George B. Roberts, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and "General" Booth, of the Salvation Army, are notable. Delsartism is discussed clearly by a Teacher of it; Mr. Shull speaks cheerfully of Growth of Population; Prof. Sizer gives some practical examples of the operation of the Mental Machinery; "An Old Maid's School for Mothers" is a sparkling bit of pleasant satire on certain ways of society; while "Unbearable Days" is very helpful to the sorely tried in family management; Hypnoticism or Mesmerism is shown to be effective in helping the intemperate to reform; "Paddling on the Beach" gets a merited rebuke from the Editor, who shows its impropriety; "Breathin' on the Stairs" is very realistic from the author of "English as She is Taught." The Science and Correspondence departments are unusually well filled with fresh matter. Only 15 cents a number; $1.50 a year. "On trial" three months for 25 cents, or the last three numbers of this year free to new subscribers. Address Fowler & Wells Co., Publishers, 777 Broadway, New York.

A CARD.

On Oct. 5, 1889, Thomas Shearer, a seven year old child, was bitten by Frank and Said Garrett's dog. Shearer notified the owners of the dog according to law, but for spite work they went and laid in complaint to a justice of the Peace that Shearer and his wife abused their children to such an extent as to make them accoutable to law. This was a positive lie and I am prepared to prove them liars.

THOMAS SHEARER.

Oct. 18 3t.

In the November HARPER'S, William Dean Howells translates a remark of the great Spanish novelist, Senor Armando Palacio Valdes, to the effect that in his opinion French naturalistic novels are less immoral than "other books which, under a glamour of something spiritual and beautiful and sublime, portray the vices in which we are allied to the beasts. Such, for example, are the works of Octave Feuillet, Arsene Houssaye, Georges Ohnet, and other contemporary novelists much in vogue among the higher classes of society."

WHERE the "Grolier Club" of New York got its name and what are the purposes and methods of the Club will be fully explained by Brander Matthews in an illustrated paper in the next number of the CENTURY. Careful drawings of bindings by Grolier are reproduced in connection with the next.

NOVEL AND USEFUL.

Retail grocers, and other retail dealers doing a credit business are adopting a plan that is at once novel and decidedly useful. They issue to their customers, Coupon Books, (patented), similar to Mileage Books for Railways, but instead of the coupons being one mile, they are for one cent each; the value of the books varying from two to twenty dollars. These coupons are good for their face value in groceries or other merchandise at the store of the firm issuing them. When the books are issued, the dealer charges his customer with the value of the book. When pay-day comes the customer pays this amount, and meantime uses the coupons for the purchase of supplies, same as paying cash, thus avoiding all disputed accounts and saving valuable time to both the dealer and his customer. Every retail dealer doing a credit business should adopt this plan, and should write the publishers for information, and if every customer would insist upon his dealer using them, there would be much less occasion for the disputing of accounts. Manufactured by the Historical Publishing Co., of Dayton, Ohio, to whom all inquiries for specimens and particulars should be sent.

A DESCRIPTION OF CHRIST.

WHAT THE PRESIDENT OF JUDA WROTE TO THE ROMAN SENATE.

This was found in an ancient manuscript, sent by Publius Lentulus, President of Juda, to the Roman Senate:

"There lives at this time in Juda a man of singular character, whose name is Jesus Christ. The barbarians estimate Him as a prophet, but His followers adore him as the immediate offspring of God. He is endowed with such unparalleled virtues as to be able to call back the dead from thier graves and to heal every sort of disease with a word or touch. His person is tall and elegantly shaped; his aspect amiable and reverent; his hair flows in those beautiful shades which no united colors can match, falling in general curls below the ears, agreeably touching on his shoulders and parting on the crown of his head like the head-dress of the sect called Nazarites. His forehead is smooth and cheeks without a spot, save that of a lovely red. His nose and mouth are with exquisite symmetry; his beard is thick and suited to the hair of his head, reaching a little below his chin and parted in the middle like a fork. His eyes are bright, clear and serene. He rebukes with majesty and counsels with persuasive language, his whole address, whether in word or deed, being elegant, grave and strictly characteristic of so exalted a being. No man has ever seen him laugh, but all Juda has frequently beheld him weep; and so persuasive are his tears that the multitudes are unable to restrain theirs from mingling with his. He is very modest, temperate and wise. Whatever this phenomenon may be in the end, he now seems to be a man of strange beauty and divine perfection, in every way surpassing the children of men."

John D Rockefeller.

SAID TO BE THE RICHEST MAN IN THE WORLD

The President of the Standard Oil Trust, John D. Rockefeller, was educated in Cleveland, Ohio, where thirty years ago he was the proprietor of a small refinery. From this beginning he has achieved his enormus wealth and power. He spends a great part of his time in New York, where the offices of the company are situated, and in other places besides Cleveland, but is still superintendent of the Sunday school of one of the Baptist churches of that city, attending its sessions whenever he can do so. He has long been an earnest member of the Baptist denomination, to the interests of which he contributes liberally. Mr. Rockefeller has made a splendid contribution, said to be millions of dollars, to the Baptist University at Chicago, placing that institution far beyond the possibility of being pinched for funds. He is a quiet, retiring man, domestic in his habits and the head of a household which is said to be a model in its simplicity of life.

"I really don't see what is the matter with my razor to-day. It is so dull that it don't cut at all," said Johnny's pa. "Why, pa," said Johnny, "it was sharp the other day, when I used it to make a ship with."

Jones: "I'm going to give up the use of tobacco in any form." Brown: "Nonsense! You know you haven't enough back-bone to do so." Jones: Haven't I though? Well, you just ask my wife if I haven't done so a score of times."

Judge: Your age?" Lady: "Thirty years." Judge (incredulously): "You will have some difficulty in proving that." Lady (excitedly): You'll find it hard to prove the contrary, as the church register which contained the entry of my birth was burnt in the year 1845."

Two Paris loafers are reading a notice: "Lost, a black poodle. One Hundred francs reward." One of them says to the other: You must take the one you stole yesterday." "But it is white." "You must say that it has turned white through grief."

"Ma," said a frightened little boy in Harlem, "do you see that goat butting my shadow on the fence" Yes, Rockie; but that doesn't hurt you any." No, not now; but if he ikes to but my shadow as hard as that, what t'd'you think he'll do when he sees me,"

THE Philadelphia mint having become inadequate for the demands of the government is to be enlarged and its capacity increased. An appropriation of $220,000 is available for improvements on the building, but this will not be sufficient to do the work required and an additional appropriation will be asked of the next Congress.

IT is believed by those who are best able to form an accurate opinion that more than five hundred millions of dollars are already invested in electricity in all its various forms in the United States. When we consider that this is an industry of comparatively recent growth the enormous activity of the present generation of men may be fairly estimated.

THE feeling of security prevailing among Republicans throughout the State is to be greatly regretted. A common expression among Republicans is: "We have a walk-over." This is our greatest danger. Apathy—naturally consequent upon over confidence—is more to be dreaded than open disaffection. Unless we change this current we are liable to wake up on November 6th and find ourselves in the minority. There is only one remedy now, and another hereafter. Now—close, compact organization. Hereafter—getting the "stay-at-homes" to the polls on election day, as the result of "close organization." Any line of work which doesn't have one of these two objects in view is a waste of energy. We must do twice the amount of "hustling" this year that we do in a Presidential or Gubernatorial year, when there are live issues to stir up the people.

THE chances of Republican success in 1892 have been improved by at least ten votes. If these be added to those already assured, the Republican strength becomes 180. The Electoral Vote will then stand thus: Certain Republican votes, 180; sure Democrat votes, 156, and doubtful, 78. The Electoral College at the last Presidential election numbered 401 votes and 201 were necessary for a choice. In 1892 it will be 410, with 208 necessary for a choice. The Republican candidate will lack 28 votes for the election, while the Democratic candidate will be 52 votes short. The real contest, therefore, will take place in the doubtful States. If the Republican candidate should carry New York, he could lose all the other doubtful States and yet be elected, for 36 New York votes added to 180 sure Republican votes would make 216, or 8 more than are needed. Without New York, Republicans can win by carrying Indiana, 15 votes; California, 8 votes, and West Virginia, 6 votes, making 29 votes, which, added to 180, make 209; or by carrying California, Connecticut and Indiana, with the same result; or, still further, by carrying California, Rhode Island, Montana and Indiana, making in all 210 votes. Without New York, Republicans can win with Indiana and two or three other doubtful States.

—The Conference of the A. M. E. church was held a week ago in Brownsville, Pa. It was a large gathering of that religious organization. Rev. B. Wheeler, the present presiding elder of this district, was continued in that capacity, with his residence in Williamsport. The Sunday-school convention of this conference will be held in Williamsport in August of next year. The Conference returned Rev. C. H. Brown as pastor of the church here. This is his third year, and throughout it all he has made a most excellent record. His people here admire him very much and we hope the year upon which he has just entered will be even more successful than the two which he completed.

Accepted a Call.

Rev. B. F. McGee, former pastor of a Baptist church at Camden, N. J., who had been called to the congregation of the Baptist church at Huntingdon, two weeks ago, preached for them Sunday morning and evening. At the morning service he announced that he had given the call his prayerful consideration and had concluded to accept it. His salary at Camden was $2000, while in Huntingdon it will be only $1200. Mr. McGee has the admiration and love of his congregation already, and his sermons on Sunday were attentively listened to by large audiences.

The many remarkable cures Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes are sufficient proof that it does possess peculiar curative powers.

Funeral of a Brave Man.

With solemn ceremony the body of the late Gen. John F. Hartranft was consigned to the grave in Montgomery Cemetery at Norristown, on Monday afternoon. Early in the day people from surrounding towns began to flock into this place, and when the hour for the funeral arrived there was an immense throng here. At 9.30 o'clock this morning private services according to the ritual of the Protestant Episcopal Church were held at the family residence, at which only the immediate family of the dead soldier was present. After the services the casket was placed on a gun-caisson, drawn by six black horses and escorted by a detachment of infantry, and taken to the Montgomery County Court-house, a spacious building located in the center of the town. Here the casket was mounted on a catafalque and the doors of the court-house were thrown open in order that the public might have an opportunity to view the face of the dead. The remains were dressed in the full uniform of a Major-General. On the left breast were pinned five medals those of Past National Commander G. A. R., Loyal Legion, Ninth Army Corps, Army of the Potomac, and a medal awarded by Congress for distinguished bravery. The court room was heavily draped with the National colors and black and these decorations were noticed on nearly all the buildings in the place. The casket in which the body reposed was of red cedar, covered with black brocade. On the lid was a silver plate with the simple inscription, "John Hartranft, 1830-1889." The doors of the room were opened to the public at 11 o'clock, and between that hour and 2 o'clock it is estimated that 20,000 people passed in a double line before the casket and gazed at the face of the dead soldier.

Governor Beaver and staff were present.

Chaplain McCook, in his oration, referred briefly to the military and civic career of Gen. Hartranft, eulogizing his many qualities of mind and heart.

At the conclusion of the oration the body was removed from the court-house and the march to the grave was begun. The funeral cortage was made up as follows: Sheridan Troop, of Tyrone, Pa.; City Troop, of Philadelphia; Battery C, of Phoenixville; Sixth Regiment of Pennsylvania National Guard; the caisson carrying the casket; the mourners, including the family of the deceased and 200 commissioned officers of the National Guard. Then followed delegations from the Royal Legion, Union League, of Philadelphia; Grand Army of the Republic; civic organizations and citizens, the procession numbering in all about 5,000 persons.

At 5 o'clock the procession arrived at the grave, where the casket was lifted from the caisson by six sergeants and placed on the ground. Rev. Dr. Davidson, of Philadelphia, read the burial services of the Episcopal Church and the body was lowered into the opening. Three volleys of musketry and a Governor's salute of fifteen guns was then fired and the sounding of "taps" by Sergt. Williams, Gen. Hartranft's old bugler, ended the burial ceremony.

The Cow Question in Politics.

DEAR MR. EDITOR. Will you please allow me space in your valuable paper to tell the people of Bellefonte and Centre county that L A Schaeffer, the Democratic nominee for prothonotary, is bitterly opposed to having cows run at large on the public highways of any borough or township in the county. At the election in Bellefonte borough last February, when the cow question was voted on, Mr. Schaeffer voted to prevent the cows from running at large. He not only voted that way, but secretly in an underhanded way did all he could to induce others to vote the same way. He had numerous caucuses with different voters, telling them that cows on the streets of Bellefonte were a nuisance and that they should be banished forever. He tried to keep in the shade in the matter, but at the same time he is the bitterest enemy the Bellefonte cow has. His father, you know, is a rich farmer in Walker township, who has plenty of pasture land and is abundantly able to maintain both land and fences. He keeps all his stock pastured throughout the whole year. Therefore, the Schaeffers think that everybody else should do the same, whether they have been fed at the public crib for many years or not

These are facts which the voters of Bellefonte and Centre county should carefully weigh before they cast their ballots. The Schaeffers have grown independently rich by being in public office of one kind or other for years, and now they admit that everybody else should possess as much land to pasture their cattle in as they have themselves.

W. I. Fleming, the Republican nominee for prothonotary, is a poor man and earns his living by the sweat of his brow—by working at the tailoring trade. This he has done during all the years while Schaeffer has been hanging around the Court House or jail getting big pay for little work. The voters now have an opportunity of showing their preference for a poor laboring man as against an eternal office holder, who has grown rich by doing nothing. That is the difference between Fleming and Schaeffer.

A PEACEFUL POLICY.

From the Detroit Free Press.

"Old man," exclaimed a tough, as he entered a saloon on Chaplain Street, "I can break you in two in less than a minute!"

"Have a glass of beer at my expense?" smilingly queried the saloonist.

"Well, I don't care if I do. Thanks. You are a gentleman, you are."

"Do you let toughs browbeat and bulldoze you after that fashion?" asked a man who had witnessed the scene. "Why you are big enough to eat two or three of them at once."

"Let's figure a minute," replied the other. "I gave him a small glass of beer, costing me about a cent and a half. He went away good-natured and satisfied. I could have bounced him, but it would have taken $5 worth of exertion, to say nothing of a possible arrest and a suit for assault and battery. Did I gain or lose?"

"Well, if you put it in that way, you gained." "That's the only way to put it. I used to keep a grocery. On one occasion I refused to throw off a cent on a dozen eggs, and the family took their trade, amounting to $800 per year, to another grocer. That was a lesson to me to last forever."

Pleasant to the taste and surprisingly quick relieving coughs and colds it is not at all strange that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup always succeeds.

A Dig in the Ribs.

If on the right side and lower part of the diaphragm, though playfully meant and delivered, is calculated to evoke profanity from a chappy whose liver is out of order. When that region is sore and congested, pokes seem fiendish. Look at a man's countenance ere you prod him under the ribs. If his skin and eyeballs have a sallow tinge, you may infer also that his tongue is furred, his breath apt to be sour, that he has pains not only beneath his ribs, but also under the right shoulderblade. Also, that his bowels are irregular and his digestion impaired. Instead of making a jocose demonstration on his ribs, recommend him to take, and steadily persist in taking, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest anti-billious and alterative medicine extant. Incomparable is it, also, for dyspepsia, rheumatism, nervousness, kidney trouble, and fever and ague.

THE NAPKIN AND THE CHIN.

Theodore Child in Harper's Bazar.

You may have heard travelers scoff at the practical Frenchman who stuffs one corner of his napkin inside his shirt-collar, and spreads it fully over the front of his person from his chin down to his knees. This is the practice of the French people of the middle and lower classes, who are thrifty and prudent, and who wish to eat at their ease and not spot their clothes.

There is nothing ridiculous in this practice. There is a reason, and an excellent reason, for so spreading the napkin, and if I were dining at home, or alone at a restaurant or club, and had on my spotless shirt and open waistcoat and clawhammer coat, all ready to go to the opera, I should certainly spread my napkin over my manly and snowy bosom, just as the Frenchman does, and so I should dine at my ease, serenely and without care, knowing that I had thus insured the immaculateness of my linen. However, let it be remembered that company manners in all countries require you simply to spread your napkin loosely over your knees, and to eat cleanly and decently.

BEGINNINGS IN RAILROADING

IN THE DAYS WHEN THE PAY ROLL BETWEEN COLUMBIA AND PHILADELPHIA WAS $1,162—PAY OF ENGINEERS AND FIREMEN.

Hayes Smith, of Columbia, now the oldest engineer in service on the Philadelphia Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad entered the service in 1840. He owns several relics of railroading in those early days, but the one he prizes most highly is described by the Columbia Spy as the pay roll of the motive department of the Columbia and Philadelphia Railroad Company, for the month of August, 1843. At that time the company employed twenty engineers and firemen, and according to the roll their aggregate wages for the month amounted to $1,162.36—engineer, $990; firemen, $672.36. The engineers were paid at the rate of $2 per day, and the firemen, $1.25.

When Mr. Smith connected himself with the company, their engines were without a cabin, and the engineer and fireman were out in all kinds of weather. Joseph Amos, a passenger engineer, about 1845, built a small cabin over his boiler, at his own expense. It was a rough structure, but the officials were very much pleased with it, and had all the engines made with cabs, and reimbursed Mr. Amos. The engines were also without sand boxes at that time, and one of the firemen used to sit on the bumper in front of the engine while rounding a curve, with an ordinary tin bucket filled with sand by his side. The sand was then dropped on the tracks with his hands.

The late Joseph R Weizel, of Harrisburg, was the first mail agent on this line. He would stand on the bumper of the car, and as the train passed the station, the mail bag was thrown at him by the station agent. Mr. Weitzel was an expert in the business, and was never known to "muff" a bag. Mr. Smith has worked under eighteen superintendents, the first of whom was Hon. James Cameron, brother of the late Simon Cameron.

Affairs at Johnstown.

Dr. Pancoast is thus reported in the Philadelphia Press, which contradicts many exagerated rumors of a bad condition of affairs in the the stricken city of Johnstown:

"That is all bosh. The health of Johnstown is no worse than it was last year at this time, and as for there being 400 cases of typhoid fever—that it is a gross exageration. I expected to find there was an epidemic from the accounts in the papers, but such is far from being the case. There is, of course, great apprehension on account of the bad condition of the thoroughfares which may produce malarial sickness, and eventually fever, but the Red Cross Hospital is free from typhoid. The Almshouse is seventeen miles away, and we cannot expect anything less than a considerable number of malarial cases in view of the floating population that is attracted to Johnstown by the knowledge that there is so much money to be expended for the benefit of the poor and suffering.

"There is but one hospital in Johnstown and that is the Red Cross one. It is now the purpose of the Red Cross Society to build a permanent hospital for the Winter. They are hampered for want of accommodation; we have only room for forty-three patients, and as fast as a well one goes out a sick one comes in. A building with wings will shortly be erected by the Red Cross Society, and the committee who have the matter in charge will report next Wednesday as to the most advisable and best plans to be employed for the purpose. The camp of the Red Cross Society is situated just outside of the ruined district, and is under the direction in conjunction with Dr. Wakefield, president of the County Medical Society of Conemaugh; Dr. Wagner, chairman of the Hospital Association, and Dr. Matthews, secretary of the County Medical Society."

When asked about the business prospects of Johnstown, Dr. Pancoast replied:

"Business is booming; the blast furnaces are all in operation, and traffic is growing day by day."

From Houserville.

A few evenings ago, a party of young folks from Lemont and vicinity hired a hack, horse and driver and went to the home of Mr. Wm. Jackson, who lives near State College, with the expectation of having a good time. When they arrived at the place the folks had retired for the night, but, not deterred, they put their horses in the stable, their wagon on the barn floor and the ladies went in the house. When everything was in readiness the lady of the house was summoned. Judge of her surprise when she made her appearance. She quite unceremoneously told them to depart. Perhaps they will inform their hosts next time they go visiting.

Mr. Thomas Reilly, of Boalsburg, Democratic candidate for Associate Judge, was a recent visitor in this place.

The farmers in this vicinity are further advanced with their fall work than they are in most places. Most of them have almost finished husking corn.

Mr. Wm. Johnstonbaugh, formerly of this place, is now living at Vail, near Tyrone.

MissesBelle Houser, and Cora Woomer with Alfred Frayer and Henry Houser, spent the first part of this week at the former's home on Muncy Mountain, gathering a nice lot of chestnuts.

Some Presbyterian Affairs.

The Presbyterian Synod in Altoona adjourned on Monday evening and will meet in Wheeling, W. Va., next year Rev. Dr. William Laurie seems to favor the division of the Synod as the following paragraph from the report in the Altoona Tribune indicates:

The order of the day having arrived, the question of division of the synod was taken up and was warmly discussed by Dr. Patterson, Dr. Beacom, Dr. Edwards and others. The question was called for and the second amendment, which was that the matter should be handed down to the presbyteries, was voted on and lost. The first amendment, that a special committee should be appointed, to which the matter of division should be referred was also lost. The original motion was then called for which was the recommendation of the committee on bills and overtures in its report to the effect that the matter of the division of the synod, according to the minds of the committee is expedient. This was passed with a roar of 'ayes' and several fainter "noes," but Dr. Laurie assured the synod that the matter would not remain quiet, but would be resurrected again.

The Synod very highly recommended Lafayette College.

This is the way in which the session was ended. The report of the committee of absence was adopted. The minutes of synod were then read, corrected and approved. The roll was called, hymn No. 793 was sung, followed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Vance, benediction by Moderator W. W. Moorehead, D. D., and synod adjourned to meet in the First church, Wheeling, W. Va., on the third Thursday of October, 1890.

One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier before the public.

Merit Wins

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all Humors, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Billiousness, overcomes That Tired Feeling, creates an Appetite, strengthens the Nerves, builds up the Whole System.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

In the Churches.

Rev. J J Beacom, D. D., of Grovetown, Pittsburg presbytery, spoke. Two Englishmen lived near each other. The first went to the second and said: "I have two things against you. First, you don't pay your debts, and second, you say ugly things about me down at the town." He said: "Well, here is the bill I owe you, and the second is not true, for when I go to town I keep my mouth shut." My dear friends, if you will only assist a little in this matter we can accomplish great things. Those of you who cannot do that please don't say anything.

Letters were announced and the Rev. A W Spooner offered the closing prayer, and the synod then adjourned to meet at 9 a. m. Monday.

The Methodists listened to remarks about the glorious harvest. They saw some real illustrations of the harvest fruits in the special church devotions. The display of fruits included pumpkins and beats in lavish profusion scattered through the beautified new edifice. There were also flowers gracefully arranged. The Rev. W. A. Houck discoursed on the ever timely topic "The Harvest is past; the summer is ended, and ye are not saved." Large congregations filled the church both morning and evening, and it was an occasion of much rejoicing.

Of course, the Reformed people were delighted to again hear their youthful new pastor, Rev. Miles O. Noll, and were pleased with his sermon.

Rev. J. O. Davis delivered a most energetic sermon in the Episcopal church in the morning, on the true foundation of the church, and strongly combatted false theories and philosophies.

From Philipsburg.

We take the liberty of printing some Philipsburg news which appeared in the Altoona Tribune, under date of October 21:

Charles McGirk, son of Dr. McGirk, of this place, was brought home on day express this afternoon with a broken ankle received while engaged in playing foot ball at Carlisle college with a team from Swarthmore, Saturday morning last.

Frank Gallagher, an employe of Pennsylvania railroad and employed with the work gang in the Tyrone and Clearfield branch fell of a hand car on which he and a number of other employes were returning from work Sunday afternoon last. The accident occurred a short distance above Steiner's station. It is thought the handle which Gallagher was working struck him on the head, causing him to fall off. He was dragged a distance of almost two hundred yards before the car was stopped. One leg was almost cut in two, his head and face were badly cut and he received internal injuries. He was brought to this place, taken to the supervisor's office and the company surgeon, Dr. Allport, summoned. Every possible care and attention was given the young man but his injuries proved fatal within a few hours after the accident. He resided at Woodland.

Rev. Mr. McClelland, of Allegheny, preached for the Presbyterian congregation of this place Sunday morning and evening last, and from remarks overheard, the gentleman may receive a call to fill the place made vacant by the resignation of Rev. S. A. Cornelius.

Rev. Dr. McGarrah of the Methodist church is having just a slight controversy with members of his church who are at the same time members of the third, or prohibition party. The weight of public sentiment is with the D. D.

Tanner Defends Himself.

The brave soldier, Corporal Tanner, who was recently pension commissioner, defends himself against the charge of indiscreet rerating of pension applicants as follows:

"I do not propose, in any event, to have an honorable lifetime smirched in the slightest degree at this period of my existence, and where I may find well-founded reasons for believing that I have been imposed upon and misled I shall be quick to recommend the condemnation merited. I desire to add that I have made a comparison of action in these cases with that taken by my predecessor in a similar class of cases, and I find that the comparison is entirely favorable to the present administration."

Mr. Tanner says that after the investigation was ordered he at once had the rerated cases of employes reviewed in the Pension Office by office experts. Of the thirty-three cases they reported that three were simply increase cases and not rerated cases; that the action taken in two of the others was right in part; that in one case injustice had been done the pensioner and that he had not been granted enough. Six cases were reported as having been wrongly favored. All the rest were certified to the Commissioner as absolutely correct.

TO preserve the richness of color or delicacy of tint of your summer dresses, make suds of hot water and IVORY SOAP, allow to cool until lukewarm, then wash your dresses in the solution. Ordinary soaps contain too much alkali, which in a short time bleaches the color and destroys its beauty. Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, says, "The IVORY SOAP can not injure the most delicate fabric."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Mind Destroying Drugs.

An insanity specialist, in a recent conversation as to the number of young men and women at present in asylums from the use of opium, morphine, cocaine and kindred narcotics, stated that the subject had given him more trouble than all other forms of insanity combined. He said that among his patients where those whose minds had become unbalanced through drink, family afflictions, business losses and from other causes were those whose minds were destroyed through the use of narcotics. The number of patients from this cause is rapidly increasing, and there have been more men and women committed during the past six months suffering from dementia occasioned by drugs than there were from the same cause during the ten previous years. It is beyond question that narcotics are a more prolific source of insanity than all other causes combined.—Exchange.

—Bob Burdette, who has lived in Eastern Pennsylvania long enough to know what he is talking about, remarks that "when you happen to read in a Pennsylvania paper the notice of the marriage of Lena Aubergestehemutterhauser and Heinrichs Koontzcheleichter by the Rev. Klaas Holzhauzen, don't be too fresh and think you are reading an account of a German wedding. The chances are that the contracting parties and witnesses speak better English than they do in Boston, and that there wasn't a soul at the wedding that could speak or understand a word of German. These names are heirlooms in some parts of Pennsylvania, and the old families cling to them fondly long after speech and accent have departed. The're mighty good things for the babies to cut their teeth on.

October.

This month was called October from being the eighth month in the year according to the ancient Latin calendar. It seems unfortunate that September, October, November and December should each bear within its name a numerical designation that does not accord with its true place in the calendar. But no attempt seems to have been made to correct this obvious solecism.

The Saxons called this month "Wynsmonath," or the wine month. Poets and writers of all kinds are never tired of praising the beauties of this delightful month. Its brilliant suns, its cool bracing atmosphere, the varied glories of the forests, the autumn fruits, the woodland sports, all render it one of the most enjoyable in the calendar.

Trains were on time today for once.

GOOD, HEALTHY APPETITES.

In a Maine company recently the conversation turned to gastronomical feats and achievements in the art of stuffing. When the young lady who had eaten six bananas at one sitting, and the young man who had boasted of having topped off a dinner with a whole mince pie, had told their stories, a demure maiden modestly related an incident in the history of her family that completely discouraged all her rivals. "One Fourth of July," said she, "my brother and a friend wished to make an excursion up the river, and as they proposed to start very early in the morning and be gone all day, my mother prepared a large basket of food for them the night before In the bottom of the basket she placed a thick stratum of delectable articles to represent supper; on this she placed another layer for dinner; and at the top of the basket, where it would be first accessible, she put a hearty breakfast. Being well acquainted with the capacity of boys, she made an unusually large allowance for each of the three meals. Well, the boys set out for their excursion at four o clock in the morning. Their boat had not gone far up the river when the rain began to come down. They went ashore to wait awhile, and ate their breakfast. The rain was still falling when they had finished this share of their supplies, and so they immediately ate the next layer—their dinner. Still they were hungry and still it was raining. They had nothing else to do but to devour the remaining contents of the basket, and so they ate their supper. It was then evident that the weather wouldn't clear, so they jumped in their boat and came back home—and took breakfast with the rest of us!"

THE COLDEST.

From The San Francisco Examiner.

The coldest region in the United States is a stretch of country on the northern border from the Minnesota lakes to the western line of Dakota. At Pembina, which lies near the forty-ninth parallel, the lowest temperature recorded in the great storm of the winter of 1873 was 56 degrees below zero. This is believed to be the lowest temperature reached in the United States.

At least 500,000 pounds of tobacco in Kentucky have been entirely destroyed by the frosts of the last few nights. About one half of the crop had been housed and cured, but the rest had been cut late and placed in open sheds and frames in the fields, and was not sufficiently cured to withstand the frosts.

WHERE FARMING IS SLOW.

Agriculture is just a little off in some parts of Windham County, Conn., and the market value of farming property is not what the owner of it desire. At a public auction at a homestead in Danielsonville the other day David A. Dean bought the barn on the place for 45 cents, some sheds were sold for 50 cents, and another outbuilding for $1. The latter piece of real estate was something rather choice. Landlord Salisbury bought 20 bushels of fine winter apples for $5, and everybody said he was an "extravagant man." When the auctioneer tackled the house there was not one bid for it, and he said sadly: "I did hope ter get a dollar'n seventy-five cents fur it; but, gentlemen, hev yer own way, hev yer own way." The latest project by which it may be disposed of is to have a raffle for it at 25 cents a ticket, and the lucky man has got to treat the crowd on Danielsonville small beer.

A SUDDEN FALL IN VALUE.—Stranger: "Have you any choice lots on hand?" Landowner: "Yes, sir; yes, sir, something fine! The nicest lots that ever laid out doors! There are two; all improvements, convenient to cars, clear title, etc. They are choice, but I will make them fifteen hundred for cash." Stranger: "Well, I'm not buying; I'm making assessments—did you say fifteen hundred each of those lots?" Landowner (hastily): No, oh, no, for the two!" Stranger: "Any more choice lots?" Landowner: "That's all; just about sold out."

Maiden Aunt: "You display a great deal of agility at tennis, my dear. If I had taken such exercise when I was young, I should be a happier woman now." Athletic Niece: "You flatter me, aunt, but I suppose you are right; I had two proposals on the grounds yesterday and one to-day."

Orderly Servant: "Your name?" Recruit: "Beckstein." O. S.: "Your business?" R.: "Co-assistant at the Gynæcological Polyclinic." O. S.: What? Well, pass along, but if by to-morrow you can't find some business that I can pronounce, I'l have you put in the lock-up."

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Pupils of Public Schools Eighty Per Cent. Girls. Where are the Boys?

The Principal of the Watsontown public schools in his last monthly report to the School Board makes the following startling announcement:

"The schools closed last term, May 13, with 275 pupils on the rolls, and began this term with 320, which number has been increased to 365. Of this number about eighty per cent. are girls. When the High School is reached the ratio is astonishing; out of a total of fifty-two students seven are boys. Here is something for parents to study, whether it will pay to take the boy from school and put him to work before he has even a foundation for the common branches of study It is truly a grave question for the citizens of our town to consider. These boys will in the near future be the representative men of the town, and from these statistics we may be able to judge of the ability of the men they are likely to become. If education is valuable at all it is worth the time and sacrifice necessary to obtain it."

In commenting on this remarkable presentment the Williamsport Labor Record says: "How many persons on reading this report will at first sight discover anything to be surprised or alarmed at? Out of every one hundred scholars in attendance eight are girls, while the ratio is even greater in the higher grade where 'out of a total of fifty-two students' in the High School 'only seven are boys.' What does this mean? It means that boys are taken out of school before they have acquired anything like an ordinary education and placed in mills and factories to do manual labor either for the purpose of keeping from the door the gaunt wolf,hunger or to gratify the greed of avaricious parents, or both.

'If we remember correctly, at the commencement exercises of the High school in this city last May, out of a graduating class of twenty-one there were but two males, showing that the proportion of females in attendance at the High school was proportionately as great, if not greater than that of Watsontown. Stand around near any of our schools when they are dismissed for the day and one cannot fail to notice that the girls outnumber the boys three to one. Where are the boys? Take a position on Third street anywhere near the centre of the city between the hours of five and six o'clock in the evening when the furniture factories, planing mills and box factories close down for the day and watch the little fellows as they pass up and down the street on their way home and the question,will be answered. Some of them are already dwarfed, and are prematurely old in appearance, as they trudge along carrying their dinner buckets, instead of what should be their school books. These are the boys who, if they live, will be the men of the next generation, and what kind of men they will be is not hard to guess. Competition in business has forced them to labor and robbed them of the benefits of education, while their fathers, perhaps, are walking the streets in idleness in consequence of their children having filled their places at lower wages in the factories.

"That such a system should be permitted to exist in a free country like ours, is a disgrace to every man who boasts of being an American free-born citizen. It is a system that degrades, brutalizes and enslaves the rising generation and cannot and should not be tolerated in a free and enlightened country, and the principal of the Watsontown school may well say in alarm that "this is truly a grave question for the citizens of our town to consider." What says the superintendent of the public schools this city? This is matter that should deeply concern this entire community. Give us the figures and your views on the subject, Prof. Transeau."

We do not believe that a condition of affairs quite as startling prevails here, though doubtless the proportion of girls is larger than that of boys. Even in the High School, if our latest observation was correct, there were at least one third as many young gentlemen as young ladies. We regret that there are not as many boys as girls who can go through the entire course. Will some of the Centre county educators give us a few statistics on the subject and also a statement of their opinion concerning it.

Death of ex-Governor Hartranft.

General John F. Hartranft, ex-Governor of Pennsylvania, died at noon on Thursday at his home in Norristown. He had been ill about ten days. The General had been collector of the port of Philadelphia and his latest honor was mention for and perhaps offer of the position of Pension Commissioner. As a soldier he was brave and fearless. On horseback he was very distinguished in appearance.

The last time we saw the General he was the guest of Gen. Hastings in this place. The same evening he made an address to the citizens of Bellefonte from the Brockerhoff House balcony.

—One week after the Love-Kline wedding—on the 30th of October—Miss Annie Speer, the charming and gifted daughter of Mr. W T Speer, will be married to Mr. Horace Mann, eldest son of Mr. Fearon Mann. Concerning the Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association being a public institution and largely supported by the public, demands frequent notice and all our readers should be interested in it. A new year in the organization began to day. The officers, elected on Friday evening, who will preside over its affairs this year, are as follows:

President—James R Hughes.

Vice President—W S Zeller.

Recording Secretary—Frank P Bassett.

Treasurer—J C Weaver.

Librarian—G W Rees.

Board of Directors—A Lukenbach and D S Keller,of the Reformed church; Ed. Garman, of the Episcopal church; D M Lieb, of the Methodist church. J W Gephart,of the Presbyterian church; Prof. Johnstonbaugh, of the Lutheran church; A B Lucas, of the Disciple church; F P Green of the Baptist church.

The officers are members ex-office of the Board. The Constitution requires that of the eight members of the Board, five churches be represented and not more than two from any one church. The conditions are more than complied with, seven churches being represented, the Reformed church by two members.

No further steps have yet been taken towards the gymnasium for the reason that all the estimates thus far made are too high. We call the attention of builders to this matter. See if you cannot plan a building the cost of which will not exceed $500. If you can do this and the plan is approved you will get the work to do.

How would a popular subscription do to help this project along? About one hundred names have been secured of young men who pledged themselves to give $3 per year each. But doubtless there are some who consider a gymnasium worth more than that sum, and are willing to give more. If so, they can make some move to give whatever they are able.

A Woman's Discovery.

"Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady of this county. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured, Her name is Mrs Luther Lutz." The Art of Cookery.

There are some ladies who seem to be perfect masters of the culinary art. Everything they prepare and compound is par excellence. What chicken and waffles they can prepare! How delicately they can compound coffee and make an oyster stew, and as for fried oysters—the doubly delicious bivalves fairly melt in one's mouth. Their cakes are perfect in flavor, lightness and excellence. And in a cake, let me tell you, it is nine-tenths in the way it tastes. We have seen cakes which were magnificent in appearance. They were well shaped, superbly ornamented and frosted, decorated in the highest style of the art. But when tasted they were not more palatable than chips. But cakes that are spongy, moist and nicely flavored are the cakes that we like. Prominent among those who are superior in the culinary art we have in our mind just now Mrs. Wash Rees. We have often of late had opportunity to taste what she has made and it was indeed grand. We are good judges of it, too, having all our life been catered to by one who is herself a very superior cook. And it is because we know what is what in cooking that we thus allude to Mrs. Rees. What she prepares always looks tempting and the tasting of it increases admiration for her skill.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism for 10 years standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at W. C. Keplinger & Co's. Drugstore.

A Dig in the Ribs.

If on the right side and lower part of the diaphraghm, though playfully meant and delivered, is calculated to evoke profanity from a chappy whose liver is out of order. When that region is sore and congested, pokes seem fiendish. Look at a man's countenance ere you prod him under the ribs. If his skin and eyeballs have a sallow tinge, you may infer also that his tongue is furred, his breath apt to be sour, that he has pains not only beneath his ribs, but also under the right shoulderblade. Also, that his bowels are irregular and his digestion impaired. Instead of making a jocose demonstration on his ribs, recommend him to take, and steadily persist in taking, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest anti-billious and alterative medicine extant. Incomparable is it, also, for dyspepsia, rheumatism, nervousness, kidney trouble, and fever and ague.

FOND OF ORIGINALITY.

A Lady Who Sets a Fashion of Her Own When Riding or Driving.

Lenox Letter Chicago News.

Mrs. Westinghouse is a clever horsewoman and rides frequently a beautiful blooded mare whose pedigree rivals the Plantagenets. Whenever she took her rides abroad last Summer she got herself up in the most perfect of London-cut, Quorncloth habits with a silk hat and dogskin gloves of the approved type, but she invariably hooked into the belt of her habit skirt a large silver chatelaine with twenty or more belongings, so that she tintinabulated upon her way much after the fashion of the celebrated lady who wore rings on her fingers and bells on her toes. To complete the picture she carried over her head an expensive white lace parasol, whose carved ivory handle fluttered with white satin ribbons. When she appeared with these little additions to her toilet upon the favorite drives the Lenox cottagers did not hesitate to openly stare and comment, and girls in correct driving costume who were going about in their own chapel carts would even go so far as to draw rein and stand still in the road as this queer figure went by.

Her toilet on the drive, when she appeared in her own handsome London-built equipage for an afternoon airing, was equally peculiar. Her dress may be the most perfect creation of Parisian couturieres' and yet with it she would wear a large white knitted hood tied under her chin with a long pink ostrich feather thrust into its meshes with the end waving in the wind. Some astonishing eccentricity of the sort made every costume noticeable and her appearance was always anticipated with interest, for it was known that she would not disappoint the public of some novelty impossible to forecast.

Pushing the Comparison Too Far.

Chicago Tribune.

It was late, but the young man still sat uneasily on the edge of his chair trying to summon courage to say the words the young woman was waiting to hear.

With mighty convulsion he swallowed something like an ostrich egg that had risen unexpectedly in his throat.

'Felisty,' he faltered, 'I never could say what I wanted to say, as other people can, I always was an unlucky dog, anyhow.'

'You're not good for hunting purposes, Cephas,' murmured Felisty. 'You are too long in coming to a point.'

'Well, I won't be a setter any longer, Miss McGinnis. Not in this house!' thundered the young man, as he grabbed his hat and left her presence forever. Miss Felisty McGinnis had carried her speech a little too far.

SUGGESTION FOR EDITORIAL.

The modern magazine may be taken as embodying the best literature of the world, as the magazine editor pays the highest prices to novelists, scientists, statesmen, soldiers, and even kings and princes, for the best they can furnish in the literary line. The well-edited magazine becomes an educating influence in the family circle, whose importance cannot be over-estimated. The children as they grow up, are attracted by its illustrations, and so come in time to have a taste for reading. There is always something that is new, something that is strange, something that is interesting; and we consider that we are doing our readers a positive benefit if we are instrumental in placing such a publication within their reach. The special arrangement which we have made with the COSMOPOLITAN presents very unusual inducements. That magazine, although only in the tenth month under its new management, is already recognized as one of the most interesting publications of the day. It is seeking subscribers everywhere and obtaining them. The proprietors believe that the COSMOPOLITAN has only to be examined to secure a permanent subscriber. That is why we are enabled to make, if the offer is accepted before January next, such a very low rate, by which our readers can obtain the COSMOPOLITAN for little more than the cost of this journal alone. Just think of what the combination means! You obtain your own home journal at about the regular price, and have thrown in a magazine which gives you, in a year, nearly fourteen hundred pages of reading matter by the ablest writers of the world, including six hundred pages of illustrations that are unsurpassed in point of interest and execution. Will it not pay you to send a subscription to this office for the NEWS and the COSMOPOLITAN, immediately? Remember, only $5 00 for the two.

PRINTERS' INK.

A JOURNAL FOR ADVERTISERS.

PRINTERS' INK is just what it purports to be, "a journal for advertisers." It is issued on the first and fifteenth day of each month, and is the representative journal, so to speak—of American advertisers. It tells the intending and inexperienced advertiser in plain, comprehensive articles how, when, and where to advertise; how to write an advertisement; how to display one; what newspapers or other media to use; how much to expend—in fact, discourses on every point that admits of profitable discussion If you advertise at all, PRINTERS' INK can help you. Perhaps you expend but Ten Dollars a year in advertising; if so, PRINTERS INK may show you how to obtain double the service you are now getting for one-half the money. A year's subscription costs but One Dollar: a sample copy costs but Five Cents. Advertising is an art practiced by many but understood by few. The conductors of PRINTERS' INK understand it thoroughly. Surely their advice, based on an experience of more than twenty-five years, will help you. Address:—

Hartranft's Funeral.

The last obsequies over the remains of Major General Hartranft will take place at Norristown, Montgomery county, Pa., on Monday, October 21. Orders providing for an escort and other details have been issued from the office of the Adjutant General. In view of the high character of the deceased, of his eminent private worth and of his distinguished services in military and civil life, it is further ordered that the flags upon the public buildings be displayed at half mast on the day of the funeral and the several departments of the State Government within the executive control be closed upon that day.

PRIZES FOR SONS OF VETERANS.

An effort to Secure a Gain in Membership in the Department.

All the captains of the Pennsylvania Camps of the Sons of Veterans, U. S. A., have just received a notice dated Meadville, Pa., October 10, and signed by Chas. M. Cott, colonel, in which these statements appear:

"Examination of camp reports for the last year disclose the fact that we are making no material gain in membership. Pennsylvania, the birth-place of the Order of Sons of Veterans, and once the banner division, has fallen back to second place, with Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and other states close at our heels. When I took command it was with the co-operation of the members, to restore the division to the first place among the disvisions in point of numbers and influence. To that end earnest effort is being made to increase the number of camps, in which effort the assistance of yourself and the members of your camp is hoped for. But more particularly is your earnest co-operation asked in the effort being made to increase our membership in the camps already existing. To accomplish this, and to create an enthusiasm and friendly rivalry among the camps in the division, I have obtained the unanimous consent of the Division Council to offer the following prizes:

"The camp showing the largest percentage of net gain in membership in proportion to its present membership, during the quarter ending December 30, 1889, will receive a cash prize of $10. The second largest will receive $5, the reinstatements from suspended will count the same as one muster. All losses to count equally. In addition to the above prizes I will present to one member in each camp in the division reporting a gain of five or more new recruits a beautiful colored lithograph certificate of membership. This certificate will be presented by the installing officer, in January, to the member of the camp who has brought into his camp the largest number of recruits during the preceding months of October, November and December."

Colonel Cott hopes that prompt and hearty cooperation will increase the membership and interest, and that the organization can rejoice over a net gain of more than 1000 members between now and January 1.

We hear very little about the Sons of Veterans of Bellefonte and are almost inclined to believe that the society here is not in a very flourishing condition. Of course, Bellefonte should have a flourishing organization of the S. of V.

Of Interest to Mortgage Holders.

Among the acts passed at the last session of the Legislature and approved by Governor Beaver, is one providing 'That it shall be the duty of the holder or holders of mortgages recorded in the proper office at least once in every three years to cause to be entered on the margin of the record thereof all payments of either principal debts or interest or both." The mortgager must tender the legal fee for such entry or entries, or it may be done in his behalf by any one interested in the property covered by the mortgagee, and in case of failure by the mortgager to comply with the act on such condition a penalty of $100 may be recovered.

—If the postmasters throughout the country should enforce the law in regard to the delivery of letters to parties through the postoffice, all girls under eighteen and boys under twenty-one years of age could not get a letter from the postoffice unless by order of the parents or guardians. Here is the law as it reads: "All letters addressed to girls under 18 years of age or boys under 21 years of age will be placed in the care of their parents or guardians." It is a law, we suppose, which is discretionary with postmasters to enforce, and the condition of affairs in Bellefonte is such that likely its strict enforcement is very seldom necessary.

—A wedding occurred in the Catholic church Thursday at 7.30 o'clock, a.m., the contracting couple being Mr. James Monahan of Philadelphia, and Miss Mollie Curry, of Bellefonte. The bridesmaid was Miss Annie Curry, a sister of the bride, and the groomsman Mr. Monahan, a brother of the groom. It was the first wedding in the handsome new church edifice. There was a large company present and Rev. P. McArdle officiated. The bride is a beautiful young lady. We wish the young couple very much happiness.

The Sugar Valley Railroad.

The force of laborers at work in Sugar Valley on the Bellefonte and Eastern Railroad has been increased this week. The principal work that will be done this fall is on deep cuts. There seem to be good reasons to look for a speedy completion of the road.

—Kurtz's flouring mill at Centre Hall is now being operated at double its former capacity. Since beginning operations after its re-erection it has been rushed with business and has had a great degree of prosperity. This we were glad to know, because the fire which destroyed the first mill was a serious calamity to its owner. We hope the people of that section will find the industry just what they need and we are sure that the owner of the mill, who is an editor, will do his level best to please the people.

An Editor's Blank Verse.

This is the way the editor feels when he does up his sentiments in blank verse:

"I would flee from the city's rule and law—from its fashions and forms cut loose—and go where the strawberry grows on its straw, and the gooseberry grows on its goose; where the catnip tree is climbed by the cat as she clutches for her prey—the guileless and unsuspecting rat on the rattan bush at play: I will catch with ease the saffron cow and the cowlet in their glee, as they leap in joy from bough to bough on the top of a cowslip tree; and list while the partridge drums his drum and the woodchucks his wood, and the dog devours the dogwood plum in the primitive solitude.

Oh, let me drink from the mossgrown pump that was hewn from the pumpkin tree! eat mush and milk from a rural stump from folly and fashion free—new gathered mush from the mushroom vine and milk from the milkweed sweet—with pineapple from the pine. And then to the white washed dairy I'll turn, where the dairy maid hastening, hies, her ruddy and golden-red butter to churn from the milk of her butterflies; and I'll rise at morn with the earliest bird, to the fragrant farm yard pass, and watch while the farmer turns his herd of grasshoppers out to grass.

Recent Appointments.

A telegram from Washington, dated the 15th, is as follows:

"The Secretary of the Treasury has made the following appointments in the Internal Revenue service: Abram V. Miller, storekeeper and gauger, Twelfth District, Pennsylvania; Charles D Wells, gauger, Twelfth District, Pennsylvania; Thomas H Logan, storekeeper, Twenty-third District, Pennsylvania; Otto A Stoltz, gauger, Twenty third District, Pennsylvania."

We are glad to see the name of Mr. Miller in this connection. As a man and one of the most earnest and hard working Republicans, he deserved the best appointment that could be given him. There is not the least doubt that he will make an excellent official.

Rules for Employes.

The employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad, have just received a neat pamphlet, containing the revised rules of the railroad for the government of the transportation department of the road. They went into effect October 1. The rules and orders issued from time to time are designed for the security of passengers and of property entrusted to the company for transportation, as well as for the protection of employes, and for the proper care of their property and interests of the company. These books are only issued at long intervals, sometimes several years elapsing before the rules are revised.

"ON THE WING"

A few Observations made by a Representative while En-Route.

While your correspondent was in Philipsburg the articles belonging to Mrs. Hopkins and Mrs. Wighamen, the murdered women, were disposed of at public sale.

While at Peale we learned that Mrs. Elizabeth Shrom, of Bellefonte, is visiting there, to remain until the holidays, when she expects to return home.

It was our pleasure to meet Representotive J H Holt while in the vicinity of Snow Shoe. He is doing a very profitable farming business and has raised some mammoth vegetables. While the turnips which he cultivated so plentifully are perhaps not so large as are the Kansas turnips, which require a team of horses to draw one of them, yet, many specimens weigh from 8 to 10 pounds. Since Mr. Holt has been in the legislature he has received two presents in the way of books from the employes of the house. One was a copy of Smull's Legislative Hand Book, bound in morocco with gilt trimmings; and a copy of The Constitution of the United States, edited by Carson, and beautifully bound in morocco with blue decorations.

He owns what is certainly a remarkably interesting manuscript, dating back to the year 147. It is a letter written by Rives Holt, who was one of the sons of the then Judge Advocate of England. It is addressed to the President of the Colonies and in very strong language urges entire independence from England—certainly a bold thing to do for an Englishman who was "to the manor born."

Frank Holt, who is a son of J. H. Holt, has been in Washington territory since the 4th of January. He spent much of his time in Seattle, Blanchard, and such prominent towns. While in Blanchard he went on a hunting expedition with a friend who is a civil engineer. He was successful in shooting a large buck and saw many other deer. But his experience was not very pleasant as he lost his reckoning and two days passed by before he found his way out of the forest. Quite likely Frank began to think of the babes in the woods.

Miss Nellie Voris is still the guest of her friend, Mrs. Roths, of Snow Shoe.

M G Shank and family have moved to Johnstown.

The greatest hunting expedition of this vicinity will occur soon, when J H Holt, C K Sober, John Uzzle and his two sons and Grover Cleveland will go to the woods to slay the mighty denizens of the forest. The ex-President has written to Mr. Holt that he will be one of the hunting party, and although Mr. Sober is the champion marksman of the United States, we suppose he will, through courtesy, yield precedence to the President in the number of deer and bears he kills.

—Cyrus Chronister departed this life on Saturday, October 12, aged 81 years. Mr. Chronister lived for years at Centre Line, on the property at Centre county line. He was a farmer all his years, an honest, upright citizen. He was postmaster at Centre Line for many years and also carried the mail from Warriorsmark to his own office until the office was discontinued. He was a life-long Democrat, was a consistent member of the Lutheran church and died trusting in a better life. Rev. A J Bean, his pastor, conducted the funeral services at 10 o'clock, and the remains were laid to rest in the Lutheran graveyard at Centre Line. He leaves a wife and one son, Jacob, and one daughter, Mrs. Henry Cupp, to mourn for him, beside a large number of relatives and friends.

—For some time past a half dozen or more of Lock Haven's prominent business men have engaged quietly in perfecting arrangements for putting down a test well in the hope of striking either natural gas or oil. The prospects are favorable for an early commencement of the work, and some day in the near future the machinery will arrive and a practical man who has had large experience in putting down gas wells will be here to superintend the work. There are several places within a few miles of the city where gas is found escaping from the ground and at one of those places the test well will be put down—Lock Haven Express.

An Oyster Supper.

It is proposed by the Woman's Relief Corps, of Bellefonte, to give an oyster supper on Saturday, the 26th inst. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the G A R. The ladies have been using the room as their place of meeting, and they intend to use the proceeds in the purchase of articles of ornament to the room, The G A R headquarters are often thrown open to the public and there is a just pride among the people of the town to make the rooms very handsome. Therefore, we hope the public will give the proposed oyster supper a very large patronage on the 26th inst.

—A correspondent at Howard says: "Just now the people of Howard are in anything but a good humor; burglars have been getting in their work and everybody is painted and on the war path. On Sunday night, the flouring mill of Wm. H. Long & Co. was broken into and with sledge hammer and punch the burglars succeeded in breaking open a large iron safe. For their trouble they only got a few dollars in money, as one of the proprietors had removed the boodle the evening before. It may be truly said of these unhung scalawags that they were created a good many degrees below the angles, so to speak."

—If there are no other gentlemen who can be decided upon by the President for the position of Pension Commissioner permit us to refer His Excellency to two eminently worthy citizens of this place, either of whom would fill the bill with glittering success. We hope the President will adopt our suggestion and then will take time to go hunting for deer.

There Were Flies on Him.

He sat in his door at noonday, lonely and glum and sad; the flies were buzzing about him led by a bluewinged tad. Not a customer darkened his portal, not a sign of business was there, but the flies kept on buzzing about the old man's hair. At last in misery he shouted: "Great Scott! I'm covered with flies," and the zephyr that toyed with his whiskers said: "Why don't you advertise?"

KISSES.
(A la Romeo and Juliet.)

A prominent physician calls the kiss "an elegant disseminator of disease." He says, "fever is spread by it, so are lung diseases." Out upon the gnarled and sapless vagabond! Evidently kisses are not for such as he, and the old fox says the grapes are sour. Let him devote himself to making our women healthy and blooming that kisses may be kisses. This can surely be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is simply magical in curing diseases peculiar to females. After taking it for a reasonable length of time there will be no more irregularity, backache, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred ailments.

It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded.

A Book of 160 pages, on "Woman and Her Diseases, and their Self-cure," sent, post-paid, to any address, securely sealed in a plain envelope, on receipt of ten cents, in stamps.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
EUREKA
VINEGAR BITTERS

The Only Non-Alcoholic Vegetable Medicine put up in Liquid Form ever discovered.

It is not a vile fancy drink made of rum, poor whisky, or refuse liquors, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, but a purely vegetable preparation, made from native California herbs.

Twenty-five years' use have demonstrated to millions of sufferers throughout the civilized world, that of all the medicines ever discovered Vinegar Bitters only possesses perfect and wonderful curative effects upon those troubled with the following diseases, viz:

Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Headache, Boils, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Jaundice, Gout, Piles, Biliousness, and all other diseases arising from blood impurities, and as a Vermifuge it is the best in the world, being death to all worms that infest the human system.

It is always safe to take at any time, or under any condition of the system, for old or young or for either sex. It is put up in two styles. The old is slightly bitter, and is the stronger in cathartic effect. The new style is very pleasant to the taste and a perfect medicine for delicate women or children. Each kind is distinctly marked on top of cartoon.

Many families keep both kinds on hand, as they form a complete medicine chest.

As a Family Medicine, for the use of ladies, children and men of sedentary habits, the New Style Vinegar Bitters has no equal in the world. It is invaluable for curing the ills that beset childhood, and gently regulates the diseases to which women at every period of life are subject.

Ladies, get a bottle from your druggist and try it. If your druggist has not the New Style Vinegar Bitters, ask him to send for it. If you once try it you will never be without this priceless remedy in the house.

I have just used three bottles of Vinegar Bitters, and it has done me more good than the springs. It is the best medicine made."

JOSEPH J. EGAN, of No. 75 West St, New York, says: "Have not been without Vinegar Bitters for the past twelve years and consider it a whole medicine chest in our family."

MRS. MATTIE FURGUSON, of Dryden. N. Y. says: "Vinegar Bitters is the best medicine I ever tried; it saved my life."

ON THE HEIGHTS.

News from Snow Shoe, Pennsylvania Citizens going to California, Other Scraps.

On last Wednesday afternoon Mr. Wm. Budinger and wife, of Salladasburg, Pa., father and mother of our townman T B Budinger, also his brother, P L Budinger and wife, of Los Angeles, Cal., and William Plummer, of Williamsport, Pa., passed through Bellefonte on the day express on their way to Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Budinger, Sr., and wife will spend the winter with their two sons, who are prominent business men of that far western city, and if they like that country better than Pennsylvania they will make that their permanent residence. Their valuable farm near Salladasburg will be sold at public sale on November 23d. It contains the best orchard in Lycoming county, producing this year over 500 bushels of first class apples.

(Williamsport papers please notice.)

Mrs. Laban, a widow lady who is the mother of our townsmen, John, Thomas and Matthew Leban, was recently married to a wealthy farmer of Western Pennsylvania.

T B Budinger has the handsomest yard fence in Snow Shoe. Anyone wanting to get a fence of the same kind should consult Amos Lucas, Philipsburg, Pa.

Mr. James O'Brien, a prominent lumberman of Carpenter, Lycoming county, Pa., accompanied by his wife and daughter, were the guests of the latter's brother, T B Budinger, a few days last week.

If some of the petty thieves in our town were thoroughly prosecuted, it would be of great benefit to our community.

Mr. Robert J Haynes and wife and their son, W R Haynes, the great hunter, started on Tuesday morning to visit friends in Missouri and Kansas, and hunt prairie chicken in the wilds of Indian Territory.

The two Misses Simonds, of Karthaus, are visiting their Snow Snoe friends.

Mr. R J Haynes, Jr., has removed his store to the post-office building, near the Washington House, where he has everything fixed up very nicely.

Docter J P Glenn, of Altoona, arrived here on the late train Monday evening. The Doctor looks well and says he has gained ten pounds since he moved to Altoona. Some of the parties applying for pensions needed the Doctor's valuable services, which accounts for his present visit.

Mr. Harvey Harm, who recently returned from a ten days trip hunting squirrels and pheasants, reports game very plentiful.

Mr. William Lucas has just completed his new feed house and Dan, his good-looking driver, is very proud of it.

A Change in Matrimonial Language.

Marriageable young ladies will be exceedingly happy to know that there is to be a change in the language applied to them when they are married. Heretofore it has been customary to describe how beautiful they are; their apparel, etc. Hereafter it will be quite different. Beauty and costly clothing will be passed over as unworthy of notice and attention will be given to other particulars. For instance, if they are expert cooks that fact will be carefully noted. Then it will be considered whether or not they are good managers. You know, good cooking is not the principal requisite. Many expert cooks are wasteful and extravagant. Hence, it is important to mention their ability to manage carefully as well as to prepare appetizing edibles. Then their neatness and cleanliness will be considered and dwelt upon, especially the way they keep their house. We hope that Bellefonte girls are so tidy, such excellent managers and such expert cooks that the most extravagant language may be used in reference to them.

A Handsome New Drug Store.

The drug firm known as J. Zeller & Son, which has for years meant Mr. W. S. Zeller, has moved from its recent headquarters in the Brockerhoff House block into a very beautiful room, especially fitted up for the purpose, in Crider's Exchange. We have no doubt that it is one of the handsomest drug establishments in the State.

The store is divided into two parts. The front part, which is the drug store proper, is 46 feet deep. It is divided from the rear portion by a partition, the front part of which consists entirely of handsome beveled glass with a very large mirror in the centre. Of course, the effect produced by this is exceedingly handsome. The shelving room and cases throughout the store are most conveniently divided into sections, there being seperate apartments for the several varieties of goods. We admire the ornamental railing extending around the store above the shelves and cases.

The rear part of the store is 32 feet in depth. A door divides the principal part of this room from the prescripton room, which is 16 x 20 feet in dimensions, a convenient alcove making the room quite spacious. A laboratory in the rear is about 20 feet square.

A sky light makes the rear part of the room very bright. The pearl paper on the ceilings and the olive tinted paper on the walls, with a wide frese, correspond beautifully. Steam heat, electric light and all the modern conveniences and attachments add to the completeness and beauty of this drug establishment.

Here's Some Snow Shoe Items.

The Lodge of the I. O. O. F. met at Tyrone on the 15th. Among those who attended was our popular druggist, J. S. Ewing. Squire Smith had intended to go, but was prevented by business engagements from doing so.

Candidate for Prothonotory, W. I. Fleming, and candidate for district attorney, W. E. Gray, accompanied by L. L. Brown, Sheriff Cooke and Brother Feidler were visitors here. They saw the boys and had a good time, with the promise from the chairman that this township will be all right.

Samuel T. Fixon continues to sell the best brand of oysters.

Dan looks well behind a counter and William says that his trade has increased since Daniel began to weigh sugar.

There is a good deal of sickness on the mountain at present, keeping the doctors quite busy.

W. R. Haynes is the champion pheasant hunter, he having up to the present time captured fifty-nine. Go in, William.

The Odd Fellows of this place had a pleasant visitor in the person of D. D. G M. Geo. Taylor, who installed the officers of Snow Shoe Lodge No. 226, as follows: J. J. Yarnell, N. G; Frank Brown, V. J; Asst. Secretary D. R Thomas; Treasurer J. S. Smith (Mr Smith has filled that position since the institution of the Lodge); O. S. G., R. O. Heverly; I. S. G. H. Barger; Warden, Thomas Duly; chaplain W. B. Masters, R. S. S; O. P. King, R. S. to N. G. Samuel Holt; R. S. to V. G. J. Uzzle. The Snow Shoe Lodge is reported to be in good condition.

Eddie, what takes you to Milesburg so much? There must be some attraction.

At Rev. Bedford's church last Sunday evening the congregation listened to an able sermon from that gentleman. O, the turn out of that family on the hill! Surely, there must be an addition built to the church!

The family on the hill number ten and last Sunday twenty persons took dinner there, the other ten being visitors.

Robert Cheesman, clerk in the large store of C. Boak, was off duty a few days on account of sickness.

John G. Uzzle had his band uniform on last Tuesday. Something is going on as J. G. is fond of music.

Our genial mine boss, Robert Confer, can put away as many oysters in as short a time as any man on the mountain.

C. Boak, the prosperous merchant of Snow Shoe, has his valuable horse Dick on the road again and Miss Edith was driving him the other day.

Still in Session.

The Altoona Tribune, in closing its report of Saturday's session of Presbyterian Synod in that city, says:

The Rev. H. S. Holmes, of Warren, spoke upon the same subject (temperance.) The old struggle of sin and schim is still the same to-day as of ancient days. A few mornings after the 18th of June a man said, "Now we'll have peace. Prohibition is dead for the next hundred years." It may be that we can do but little for the next fifty years, but surely not dead for the next century. Truth crushed to earth will rise again and will roll away the stone. Powerful leagues will be formed all over the state, and as good citizens we must stand together, shoulder to shoulder, in the fight. There is something we should strive to do. The great hope of temperance reform is to obtain right thinking on the part of those growing up around you. The culture in the homes, in the Sabbath Schools and churches should be trained to right thinking. The liquor men look with absolute contempt upon a Christian man who has not grit enough to oppose this traffic. We want men who are not afraid to stand upon their convictions. Men to stand if they have to stand alone. We can train the boys and girls to understand this question, and to stand alone. There is a difference between courage and bravery. Let us have the right kind of men and we will not have such a state of affairs as now exists.

New York Wins No. 2.

The second of the World's championship base ball games was played on Saturday in New York, New York winning. Here is the score:

New York	1 1 1 1 2 0 0 0 0—6
Brooklyn	1 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—2

First base on balls—Crane, 7; Caruthers, 1. Hit by pitched ball—Pinckney. Struck out—Crane, 3; Caruthers, 2. Passed ball—Visner. Wild pitches—Crane, Caruthers. Time—1:52. Umpires—Gaffney and Lynch.

WONDERFUL BUSINESS BOOM.

The Railroads Tested Beyond Their Capacity.

A SURPRISING, YET SAFE AND HEALTHFUL GROWTH OF TRADE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Business men are very much pleased with the present condition of trade. Whoever we ask gives uniform testimony to the business boom which is now spreading and thundering all over the country. It is not regarded in any sense as an unstable or temporary impetus to trade, but a steady and regular growth which will continue indefinitely—so long as there is a wise and steady hand at the helm.

In no department is this more certainly or sensitively felt than by the railroad companies. For instance, people are wondering why the passenger trains are late every day. It is simply because a blockade has taken place all along, the line of the Pennsylvania railroad, and although additional superintendents have been put on and all the carrying facilities of the company called into reqisition, yet there is no immediate prospects that the blockade will be overcome. Information is to the effect that the same condition of affairs exists on all the lines of railroad. At a point two miles from Williamsport—Newberry—two superintendents are now devoting themselves to the duty of hastening freight as rapidly as possible. This morning, of thirty-six cars of freight lying at Lewistown, twenty-one of them contained freight consigned to Bellefonte. Coal is being transported in all sorts of cars—anything to hasten it to its destination.

There was, for several months, an inexplicable stringency in the money market, but this is daily growing less. and as business men complete arrangements to meet the demands now made upon them this stringency will disappear.

All of this will make more certain the building of new lines of railroad, and whether the Sugar Valley railroad is part of a through line or not its completion cannot come too soon, for there is a big traffic awaiting it. We are informed that there is yet another line which will pass through Bellefonte within the next year. This leads to

A SUGGESTION.

Ever since the Bellefonte car works were built we have been possessed of the conviction that they should be utilized for car works, and although other manufactures might occupy them with profit, they could best fulfill their mission as a car manufactory. Cannot the Pennsylvania railroad take hold of them advantageously? Of course, if their great establishment in Altoona is sufficient for the present and future condition of business they will not do it, but here are $60,000 structures, built especially for car works, which can likely be purchased at a great discount.

Preservation of the Forests.

This week a forestry convention was held in Philadelphia. Governor Beaver was in attendance and took part in the deliberations. Some very strong speeches were made calling attention to the importance of preserving the forests. The following, which was delivered by the Secretary of the Convention, is a sample. Read what he says:

"If the forest conditions of these mountains are destroyed the mountains themselves will be destroyed rapidly. The soil will be washed and blown from the rocks, the slopes will be seamed and torn into frightful gullies and chasms, the streams will be uncontrollable torrents for one season and then their beds will be turned into dusty wastes for the rest of the year. Their channels also will be filled up and the fertile lands of their valleys will be buried under the debris brought down from the dissolving hills. The danger of these interests of the nation is intensified by the fact that the distinguished director of the United States Geological Survey and his associates are unfortunately indifferent to the fate of these important mountain forests and do not think it worth while to object to their destruction."

The convention adopted this resolution, the conditions of which we consider excellent:

RESOLVED, That we petition the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States to pass an act withdrawing from sale all forest lands belonging to the nation and committing such lands to the guardianship of the army of the United States until a commission, to be appointed by the President, shall have made such examination of the forests on the public domain as shall be necessary for determining what regions shall be kept permanently in forest and shall have presented a scheme for a permanent national system of forest conseryancy.

RESOLVED, That we respectfully request the President of the United States to appoint a commission to examine the forests on the public domain and report to Congress a scheme for their permanent management.

—Corporal Tanner, as everybody knows, had both his legs shot off during the war, but the substitutes serve him well. Once there was about the house where he lived a negro as green as a new Congressman. "One night when Tanner had his boots all besmeared with mud, he called Adolphus in to pull off his boots. The negro caught hold of his boot, but Tanner got him to pull off both at once. Tanner had loosed the straps that held on the false legs, and the negro, putting his right foot on the bed between Tanner's legs, gave one strong, vigorous pull. Away came the legs on top of him. He gave one frantic yell, rushed out of the door, and the last seen of him he was fleeing across the wall towards the river.

Messrs. John Harris and Will Marshall were hunting not more than six miles from Bellefonte on Wednesday night and secured game larger than they calculated on. With the aid of a dog they treed an immense coon which they succeeded in displacing from the tree and then a fierce fight followed which soon resulted in the death of the coon. It is a very large fellow weighing twenty pounds. This morning they were again successful, shooting a 15 pound wild turkey.

October Bridals.

A daisy costume that would seem appropriate for a bridesmaid at an autumn wedding can be made with an accordionplaited skirt of magnolia white, an especially soft ecru tint, silk mull, with a Directoire coat of ottoman silk, the same delicate shading, writes Tillie Forney in Table Talk. A good quality of silk mull can be obtained for $1 a yard. As it is about one and a half yards wide, about eight yards would be required to form a properly full accordion skirt, which would be seven yards wide before being put through the plaiting process. An excellent quality of ottoman silk can be bought for $2 a yard to make a stylish Directoire, which should be "cutaway" in front, two flat tails, lined with surah flattening toward the bottom of the skirt in the back. Six yards of material should be ample. Directoire lapels, wide at the shoulders and narrowing into the waist line, edged with inch-wide silver braid, would ornament the bodice effectively. If the young lady's throat be white and shapely, the neck of the bodice should be cut low and bound with silver braid.

—In regard to railroad affairs, the Pittsburg Commercial, of Friday, said: "President George B. Roberts, Vice-Presidents J N Dubarry and George P Green and the Directors of the Pennsylvania railroad, and General Superintendent J F Miller and his staff of subordinate executive officers, of the Panhandle, arrived in the city over the Panhandle last evening, completing their inspection of all the lines west of Pittsburgh. Superintendent Miller and his staff returned to Columbus last night. The Eastern party will leave this morning for their tour over the Eastern ramifications of the Pennsylvania railroad system, which will include the Philadelphia & Erie, Northern Central, Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore and leased lines in New Jersey. They express great satisfaction with the conditions of the various systems."

Death of Mr. E. D. Satterfield.

The sad news has been received of the death of Mr. E D. Satterfield at his home at West Middlesex, Pa., at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, of pneumonia. Mr. Satterfield was about 77 years of age. He was very well known in this county as he traveled back and forth through this region for a period of at least 40 years. Mrs. Satterfield was engaged in the farming business and also dealt extensively in cattle. His wife, who was a Miss Hamilton, visits here frequently. She is a sister of Mrs. S H Williams, Mrs. John Noll, Mrs. Dawson and Mr. A V Hamilton, all residents of Bellefonte.

The death of Mr. Satterfield is felt sensitively by all these relatives, and they have our sincere sympathy.

Proceedings of Synod.

The Synod of Pennsylvania, which opened on Thursday evening in Altoona, was an interesting gathering. The retiring moderator is Rev. Jonathan Edwards, D. D., of Meadville, and he preached the first sermon.

William P. Potter, of Pittsburg, and P. H. Brooks were elected the temporary clerks. Rev. Dr. W. W. Moorehead, of Greensburg, was elected moderator.

A paragraph in last Saturday's Altoona Tribune in reference to Friday's proceedings of Synod says: The business of the synod was resumed and Dr. Laurie was again given the floor on the question of dividing the synod, which he again vigorously advocated.
